SELECT MISCELLANY.

THE ENCHANTED MANTLE.

BY JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

Once there was an island, separated from the rest of the world by a great ocean flowing illimitably around it. Here dwelt a mother and her two children, a girl and a boy. She loved them exceedingly, and they returned her love, and because the boy was older and stronger than his sister he took care of and protected her; and she, being delicate and fair, confided in and looked up to him. And it was always summer around them; ever since the boy and girl could remember it had been warm and pleasant, with sunshine and soft winds.

But one day the mother called the son to her, as she sat in the shadow of the cottage porch looking out to the sea. The sun was resting on a fleecy heap of golden clouds above the water's edge, and the boy saw that long golden lines seemed to be stretched from him to them.

"Lionel," said the mother, "it is a law of this island that no one can remain here after reaching a certain age. My time has come, and I must leave you, to return no more; but hereafter when your age is fulfilled, you will follow me. Now, when I am gone, you will find the summer likewise has departed, and instead there will be cold winds and snow, and clouds will gather before the sun. In those days you will wish to wrap yourself up warmly, and sit before a fire, where the cold and darkness cannot reach you. But you must never forget to care first for your little sister; the cold and the darkness will be harder for her to bear than for you, and you must keep her always warm and cheerful until she comes to my arms again."

Lionel looked in his mother's eyes but said nothing. Something filled his heart so very full that he could not speak.

His mother gazed a while in silence over the sea, and the shadow of the cottage porch grew darker around her, so that Lionel began to fear lest she should vanish altogether; but the brightness of the setting sun had so dazzled his eyes that he could not see plainly. At last his mother spoke again:

"After I am gone you will find in my room a long dark mantle which your father left me when, many years ago, he reached his allotted age and departed from us. This mantle is enchanted, and when you see it you will very much wish to wear it; and if you should do so you would be enabled to see me where I am gone. Notwithstanding, you must never yield to this desire until your sister Rose shall have ceased to require from you any further protecting care and labor; for as long as you wear the mantel you will be powerless to give her any assistance in time of need, or keep her warm and cheerful in the winter weather; and though you would be able to see me, I should look pale and sad, and the cold winds and darkness would increase around you. But if you have strength to resist the spell of the enchanted mantle until your duty to your sister is performed, you may then wear it without fear, and I shall appear bright and smiling to you, even more so than you have known me here."

As his mother ceased speaking, the shadow of the cottage porch became so deep that Lionel could scarcely see her where she sat. Nevertheless, it seemed to him that she bent over him and kissed his forehead and his eyes; and when he opened his eyes again she was gone. But looking across the sea, where the last glimpse of the sun was just sinking beneath it, he noticed a bright path extending thence to the Island shore; and at the further end of the path, where it was merged in the sun, he thought he saw his mother standing with a glory all about her. Then something so dimmed his eyes that he could hardly distinguish her; yet it seemed to him that just before she vanished she looked at him and smiled. He stood gazing until the sea had became dark and gray, the golden path had vanished, and a cold wind, which came sighing from the east, had begun to drive the breakers into foam against the shore. Then he withdrew, with a shiver, into the cottage, and lit a candle, and entered his mother's room.

By the light of the candle, as he looked around the chamber he saw a long, dusky cloak, or mantle, thrown over the chair on which his mother used to sit. It hung in sombre folds, unrelieved by any bright embroidery or triming. As he gazed upon it wonderingly—for he never remembered to have seen it before—he was conscious of a strange and almost irresistable longing to put it on. It seemed to him that it would protect him, as nothing else could, from the chill of the east wind which was already beginning to whistle around the cottage. He even felt as if it would in some way bring back to him the comfort of his mother's presense and love. So he approached and lifted the heavy mantle from the chair. As he did so a dreamy, enervating sensation began to steal over him; his strength and vigor seemed to ebb away, and the noise of the sea waves on the shore sounded in his ears like the voice of one sobbing in her sleep—like the voice of his own mother!

But ere the dusky cloak could descend over him he heard his sister Rose calling to him loudly: "Lionel! brother Lionel! where are you?"

Lionel started, and let the cloak fall back upon the chair. In a moment all his mother had said to him rushed over him. This, then, was the enchanted mantle of which she had spoken—this the effect of the spell it had already begun to cast over him. Even now he could scarcely shake it off; but summoning all his strength he rushed from the room, and rushed to find his sister, who sat shivering on the door step; and there were tears in her eyes. In his anxiety to comfort Rose, Lionel forgot all about the dusky mantle.

"What makes the sea so gray and angry?" asked Rose tearfully; "why is the wind so cold? and where is our mother gone?"

"The last I saw of her," replied Lionel, "she was standing on the furthest edge of the sea, close by the sun; and I think she must be gone to him, so that whenever he shines we may know that she is smiling upon us. And then we shall not mind any more about the cold wind and the angry sea."

So Lionel took his little sister back into the cottage, and brought wood and built a warm fire in the fireplace; and the light danced and flickered about the room, playing all sorts of pranks with the chairs and tables and the ornaments on the mantlepiece; and Rose and Lionel sat looking into the fire, her little hand resting in his. It seemed almost as if the sunshine had come back to them. At last Lionel cried out:

"See, Rose, in that red-hot coal is a perfect picture of the sea, and sun resting on it; and in the sun can you not see our mother's face smiling on us?"

"Yes! Yes!" cried Rose, clapping her little hands for joy; and now we need never feel the cold and darkness out of doors, for we can always have our mother's sunshine in the cottage!" So that night they both slept soundly, and Rose dreamed that the warm weather and soft winds had come back; all the more delightful for having been lost. But Lionel thought he was standing by his mother's chair, on which hung the enchanted mantle and wondering if the time had not yet come when he might put it on. Then he heard a voice calling him, and awakened with a start; he saw Rose standing over him looking scared and puzzled. The ground, she said had become all white and soft, and oh! so very cold; and the water had turned into a hard transparent stone, and the air was full of little, cold, white feathers, which were blown about so thickly that one could hardly see across the garden.

So Lionel gave up all thought of the mantel for that day, and, springing out of bed, he kissed his sister good morning, and set to work to make things warm and pleasant for her in-doors. When he had kindled another roaring fire on the hearth, he put on his tallest boots and his warmest coat, and plunged boldly forth into the cold, white snow-storm. He gathered together all the sticks of wood he could find in the neighboring forest, brought them in great armfuls to the house, and piled them up under the shed, until there was enough to last for many days to come. Then he took the spade and shoveled pathways all around the house, and out to the barn, for Rose to walk on, so that when the evening came around again, everything about the cottage was quite comfortable and cheeful, and Rose declared she was almost as happy as before the winter began.—And again that night the children sat hand in hand before the blazing, crackling fire; and as it fell gradually into glowing embers they fancied from time to time, they caught the glimpses of their mother's smile. At last, when the fire had died out, and Rose was sleeping quietly, Lionel stepped on tiptoe to his mother's room, opened the door, and looked in at the dusky mantel hanging on the chair.

"Perhaps," he whispered to himself, "I may be allowed to wear it tomorrow." But even as he spoke he heard Rose turn uneasily in her bed, and thought she murmered something in her sleep. So he closed the door with half a sigh, because he felt that he must wait yet longer ere the time should come.

The snow lasted a long, long while until the children almost believed that the summer had been a dream, and there never had been anything else than ice and snow. The sky was almost always covered with gray, heavy clouds, which hid the sun; but in time the children grew fond even of the clouds, they looked down upon them so softly and tenderly, and piled themselves into such strange, fantastic shapes. And once in awhile when the day closed and the sun sank below the ocean, the clouds would gather around them, all dressed in the magnificent robes of crimson, gold and purple, and stood waiting in solemn and superb array, until he had disappeared, and the gorgeous vestments vanished with him. At such time Lionel's mind would revert, he knew not why, to the enchanted mantle in his mother's room, and he wondered whether it would be transformed into splendid colors like the gloomy clouds. And sometimes he marveled that the sun should make these very clouds that strove to obscure his beauty the means of making that beauty more grand and magnificent than it could otherwise have been. Then he would ask himself whether he would be able so to glorify the magic mantle when the time for him to wear it arrived. And often it would seem to him that he could no longer wait, he so longed to cover himself with the dark folds, and feel again the drowsy influence of the spell, and look once more upon his mother's face. But whenever the longing was most irresistible the voice of his sister Rose would come to him, and something in his heart would whisper that his duty was not yet accomplished, and the mysterious mantle must still remain hanging on his mother's chair.

So the days went by, and the months, and gradually the years, and still the children lived together in the cottage. In their outward guise, to be sure, they were children no longer, for Lionel was tall strong and stately, with deep, tender eyes, and grave, determined lips; and Rose was lovely and graceful, with sweet, confiding eyes and soft brown hair. But all this was outside; there was nothing old about their hearts, and in each other's eyes they were children still. Rose always looked up to and trusted in her brother, as in the summer days so long ago; and Lionel protected and cared for his little sister just as lovingly and tenderly as when they were first left alone together. And because the time had never once come, in all these years, when he could say, "Now all is done for her that I can do, and there is nothing to prevent my giving myself up to the spell of the enchanted mantle," therefore it still remained undisturbed in his mother's room, and many years had passed since he had ever opened the door to look at it. But once in a while there would be a whisper in his heart, "The time is coming, Lionel, wait and be patient!" It seemed to him like his mother's voice, and he would enter with renewed hope and courage upon another day and year.

Still the time went on and on; and now the winter, which had seemed so long, began to gradually pass away. The winds grew warmer and gentler; the heavy clouds broke up and floated about in Titanic forms; the sun came forth again, more glorious than of yore, and soon all the snow had vanished, except that a little of the purest and whitest always rested on the heads of the boy, Lionel and his sister Rose, as a memento of the long winter they had spent together in the cottage. As the summer came on, the evenings grew longer and more beautiful, and the children, instead of sitting in-doors by the fire, spent much of their time in the porch of the cottage, looking out to the sea. Every evening there was a wonderful sunset, each more perfect than the last; every evening, also, appeared the vision of the golden path, extending from the island shore to the utmost brink of the sea; and when the sun sank down and rested a moment, all glowing, on the water's edge, the children would gaze and wonder whether they should not now see their mother's face looking at them.

At last, one evening, there had been the most glorious sunset of all. The loveliest clouds in the heavens had collected together to see it, and each reflected and multiplied the splendor. The sea was calm, and painted the wondrous picture on its bosom so marvelously well that it was hard to decide whether the reality or the copy were the better. The souls of the children were filled with joy and love, and for a long time they had been sitting beside each other, very silent, but hand in hand as ever.

So long did the silence last that finally Lionel roused himself from his reverie and pressed his sister's hand. When she did not return the pressure or move, he thought she must be asleep, and spoke to her gently, fearing to awaken her too suddenly. But she slept on, and did not answer him. Then he looked in her face; it was all rosy and glorified with the parting splendor of the sun, and in the shifting light a sweet and happy smile seemed to play about her mouth. A great and solemn awe fell upon Lionel's heart, for he knew that the beautiful and reverened figure in the chair was nothing but the image of the sister he had loved so long and faithfully. But turning his head he gazed at the brightness across the sea, and in the best of it he saw his mother's face, and beside it another, which was Rose's, only fairer and lovelier than it had ever been before. They both smiled radiently upon him, and so faded imperceptibly away.

So thereafter Lionel lived alone in the cottage. The hours passed slowly now, for he had no longer any sister to labor for and protect, and the purpose of his life seemed to have departed with her. He sat often in the shadow of the cottage porch, where the sea-breze lifted his long white hair, and looked wistfully out across the mighty sea.

One day as he was sitting, his head resting on his hand, and lost in thought, he was conscious once more of the mysterious whisper in his heart. But now instead of bidding wait and be patient, it repeated softly, over and over again, "The time has come Lionel! the time has come!" And he knew that now, at last, it was permitted him to put on the enchanted mantle. He felt, too that never in all his life had he needed it so much as now. Faithfully had he fulfilled the task which had been given him to do. He had resisted to the end the selfish fascination of the spell; he had grown weak and weary with the lapse of years; and what now remained but to wrap the dark incrutable mantle around him and satisfy the life long yearning of his soul? The long-delayed promise of his mother would be at last fulfilled; he would see her bright and smiling, in the place whither she had gone; and surely Rose, his sweet and gentle sister would be with her there.

So he went to the long-closed door and threw it open. Involuntarily he shaded his eyes with his hand, so penetrating was the soft radiance that filled the chamber. There lay the magic mantle, but dusky and sad no longer. It was all one glory of rainbow tinted stars that shone and twinkled with a tender luster.

As Lionel's eyes became accustomed to their light he saw that every star contained a picture in its heart, and that it was the picture which gave the brightness to the star. And every picture represented some occasion in his life when he had conquered his desire of wearing the mantle that he might give some help or encouragement to his little sister. It was his own life, weary and cold though he had sometimes thougt it, which had so transfigured and illuminated the enchanted mantel as to dazzle even Lionel himself.

He approached, lifted it from the chair, and drew it around his majestic figure. As he did so a peace and happiness of purity and depth unspeakable seemed to well up from within and reinvigorate his soul. A joyful light was in his eyes as he steped forth for the last time on to the cottage porch. He beheld the sun once again stooping to the sea, which lay breathlessly awaiting him, and across its bosom he saw the golden path which seemed to invite him onward. And onward he went, with a great hope increasing in his heart. And now he descried two shining figures advancing down the dazzling way to meet him. Nearer and nearer they came, growing more marvelously beautiful at every step; but, in spite of the brightness, Lionel needed not to shade his eyes, for he himself was well-nigh as resplendent as they. As they approached they held out to him their beautiful white hands, and each took one of his, and kissed him on the forehead and the eyes. So they all three went up the golden road together—his mother and his sister on either side, and Lionel between them, and as they drew near the end of the pathway Lionel heard a grand and mighty sound of singing, which seemed to come from afar beyond the sea. Then he stood upon the uttermost brink and looked forward; and the glory of the vision was unutterable; but what the vision was no living man can tell.

The Rule of Fraud.

On the morning of the election the N. Y. Sun contained the following:

Three seperate gangs of repeaters have gone from this city to Philadelphia to vote in the election. In one of these gangs there are eighty-seven men; the others are much larger. There are several United States election marshals among them. They expect to vote as many as thirty times each. They have free passage both ways, and all their expenses paid; and they receive from ten to thirty dollars apiece for their services.

Never was a political fraud organized on so grand, so undisguised a scale as for this Pennsylvania election under the auspices of Simon Cameron and U. S. Grant.

Is it possible that by such means the people of Pennsylvania may be overwhelmed, and kept under rulers that they repudiate and under a system of official villainy from which they would fain be emancipated.

DETERMINED TO WIN.

A BEAUTIFUL DOMESTIC STORY

"Of all the things, this is the worst! If I ever in all my life expected to hear such news! Why, our George has gone and got married! Do you hear?"

Good Mrs. Clements pushed her steelbowed spectacles off her bright eyes, and dropped her letter in her lap, as she turned round to her husband, the stout, clever old farmer who was contentedly stroking the old white cat.

"Deacon d'ye hear?"

This time, when she asked the question, there was a touch of sharpness in her voice.

"Yes; what if he is married? I'm sure it's natural enough. It kind o' runs in the family, 'pears to me."

But Mrs. Clements would take no notice of the little pleasantry.

"Well, if you like it, I can tell you I don't. He needn't think he's coming here, with his fine city-bred lady, all airs and graces, and flounces and fluted ruffles. There's plenty of good girls hereabout that wanted him. Right in the middle of work, too! to talk of bringing a lady here in hog-killin' time! I do declare I think George is a fool!"

* * * * *

A graceful, dainty little lady in a garnet poplin and ruffled apron, with a small, proudly-poised head, covered with short, dusky curls, and a pair of dark blue eyes, so wistful and tender, a tiny rosebud, of a mouth, and a dimple in one pink cheek.

That was Mrs. Marion Clements. Was it any wonder that George had fallen in love with her?

She sat in the bright little parlor, close beside the lace-curtained window, watching for the loved husband's return; and then, when she heard the click of the latch-key in the hall, flew for the welcome kiss.

"Havn't you got the letter this time, George? I've felt sure of it all day. Indeed, I've quite decided what dresses to take with me.

He smiled and shook his head.

A cloud passed over her pretty face.

"O George, isn't it too bad? And I do believe—Oh! I do believe they won't write because they are sorry you married me."

He put his arms around her neck.

"And supposing such to be the case, do you think it would make any difference to me?"

"Oh, no! no! only it would grieve me so if I knew I had allienated your parents from you."

"And a one sided allienation it would be, too! They have never seen you! And when they know you they can't help loving you."

"O, George!"

And the exclamation was caused by the kiss accompanying his loving flattery.

"That's true as preaching. By and by, my dear, what would you say if the firm sent me off on a traveling tour of six weeks?"

A little dismayed cry answered him.

"You wont stay here alone, eh? But, Marion, it would be five hundred dollars clear gain to us."

"What need we care for money?"

"I think the addition to our balance at the bankers would be very consoling for the absence. But never mind, little pet. Let's go down to dinner. I hope we'll get a letter from home soon."

"I'd rather have you."

A mischievous smile played on the young man's lips; he was more matter-of-fact than this romantic, tender little wife of his.

And soon it was; for Marion snatched it from his coat pocket the very next night. But her husband's face looked very grave and stern, and his eyes looked angry when she looked gleefully over the envelope.

"My dear, you must remember I care very little for what the letter contains. Remember, I did not write it; that you are dearer to me than ever before. Kiss me, first, while I watch you."

A little pang of misdoubt troubled her when she glanced over the note; then tears stole from under her lashes, and George saw her tender mouth quiver and tremble; then, when she had finished it, she laid her head down on his shoulder and cried.

"It was cruel to let you see it, my wounded birdie. Let me burn it. And don't forget, darling, what the Bible says, that a man shall leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife. You are my precious wife, Marion, and to you I turn for all the happiness my life will ever hold."

He dried her tears, and then they talked it over.

"Just because I am city bred, she thinks I am lazy and haughty, and dainty, and——"

"Never mind, Marion. She will find out some day. My father——"

"Yes, bless the dear old man! He has added: 'My love to my daughter Marion.' Oh, I know I should love him, and your mother, too, if she would let me."

"We will invite them down, when I come home. By the way Marion, I will stop at the farm on my way and invite them down, and bring them home with me."

"George, dear, I have been thinking about that trip West. I think you had better go, and leave me at home. It won't be so very long.

Marion was eating her egg while she spoke across the cozy little tete-a-tete breakfast table.

"Spoken like my true little Marion, and when I get back I'll bring you a present. What shall it be?"

"Your mother and father from the farm. It shall be that hope that will bear me company when you are gone."

A fortnight after that Marion Clements ate her breakfast alone, the traces of a tear or so on her pink cheek; then she dashed them away with a merry, joyous little laugh.

"This will never do, and now that George has gone for six weeks to prepare for his return. And I pray heaven it shall be such a coming as shall delight his very soul."

* * * * * *

"I'm sure I don't know what to say. The land knows I need help bad enough, but it 'pears to me such a slender little midget as you couldn't earn your salt. What did you say your name was?"

"Mary Smith. And indeed if you will try me for a week, I am sure you'll keep me till the season's over."

Directly she came down in a purple print dress and white apron; her hair brushed off from her face into a net; a narrow linen collar, fastened with a sailor's not of narrow black ribbon. It seemed as if she had life, too, so handily she flitted in and out of the big pantry and then down the cellar. Then after the meal, she gathered the dishes in a neat, silent way, that was perfect bliss to Mrs. Clement's ears.

"She's determined to earn her bread, anyhow; and I like her turn too."

And the deacon had "taken a shine" to Mary Smith. One by one the days wore on; the hog killing was over and done; long strings of sausages hung in fantastic rings arranged by Mary's deft fingers; sweet hams and shoulders were piled away in true house-wifely manner, and now Mary and Mrs. Clements were sitting in the sunny dining room, darning, patching and mending.

"I don't know what I am going to do without you, Mary; I dread to see you pack up your clothes."

A blush of pleasure overspread Mary's face.

THE BEAVER ARGUS

Is published every Wednesday in the old Argus building on Third Street, Beaver, Pa., at $2 per year in advance.

Communications on subjects of local or general interest are respectfully solicited. To insure attention favors of this kind must invariably be accompanied by the name of the author.

Letters and communications should be addressed to J. WEYAND, Beaver.

"I am so glad you have been suited with my work. Indeed, I have tried."

"It ain't the work altogether, though goodness knows, you're the smartest gal I've seen this many a day. As I say, it ain't the work—it's you, Mary. I've got to thinking a heap of you—me and the deacon."

Mary's voice trembled at the kindness of the old lady's tone, but she sewed rapidly on.

"It is so uncommon lonesome since the boy left the farm; but it's worse since he got married. It seems like deserting us altogether."

"Have you a son? You never mentioned him."

"No; George has gone his way and we must go ours. Yes—he married one of those crack-headed boarding-school people, who can't tell the difference between a rolling-pin and a milk-pan."

But despite her scorn, Mrs. Clements dashed off the tears with her brown fist.

"Is his wife pretty? I suppose you love her dearly."

"I don't know anything about her, and never want to know. He's left us for her, and us old folks will leave him for her too. Mary, just turn them cakes around; seems as if they're burning."

When Mary had turned the cakes, Mrs. Clements was leaning on the arm of her chair.

"Mary, supposin' you stop on with us another month yet, anyhow. The deacon will make it all right."

"It isn't the money I care for, Mrs. Clements; I only wish I might stay always. You don't know how much I love you."

"Love us! do you? Bless your heart. If poor George had only picked you out, what a comfort it would be to us all! But it can't be helped now."

She sighed wearily, then glanced out of the window, looked a moment, and then threw down her work.

"Bless my soul, if there ain't our son George coming up the lane! Deacon! Deacon! George is coming."

And all her mother-love rushing to her heart, she hurried out to meet him. Oh, the welcoming, the reproaches, the caresses, the determination to love him still, despite the poor innocent little Marion! Then when the table had been set in the next room by Mary's deft fingers, and she had returned to her "west garret," Mrs. Clements opened her heart.

"There's no use talkin', George; this fine fancy lady o' yours'll never suit me. Give me a smart girl like Mary Smith, and I'll ask no more. Come to supper now. Mary, Mary."

She raised her voice to call the girl when a low voice near surprised her.

"Oh, you dressed up in honor o' my boy. Well, I must confess I never knew you had such a handsome dress, and you look like a picture with your net off, and them short, bobbin' curls! George this is Mary Smith——"

George came through the door, and glanced carelessly at the corner where the young woman stood. Then with a cry, sprang with outstretched arms to meet the little figure that sprang into them. The Deacon and Mrs. Clements stood in speechless amazement. Then Marion, all blushes and tearful smiles, went over to the old pair and took their hands.

"I am George's wife. I was so afraid you would never love me, so I came determined to win you if I could. Mother, Father, may I be your daughter?"

And a happier family, when they had exhausted their power of surprise, amazement and pride in the beautiful Marion, never gave thanks over a supper table.

Breaking it Gently.

Our amiable friend and co-laborer of the Harrisburg Patriot, thus introduces the election returns from Pennsylvania:

We give all the returns received up to the hour of going to press. They are not heavily charged with comfort to the Democracy and Liberals in Pennsylvania. The indications are that we have been effectually routed, and it remains for us to retire in as good order as practicable, having due regard for our wounded. The Cherry Hill certificate of good character has been endorsed by the votes as counted, and the incoming Governor is at liberty to call into his cabinet his former creditor, Evans, as Secretary of the Commonwealth, and "Dear Yerkes," as his confidential adviser. The freemen, who are jealous for the honor of Pennsylvania, and who gathered around the upright statesman, Charles R. Buckalew, have been overborne by those who preferred party to purity, aided by repeaters and negroes imported from adjoing States. Philadelphia, under the skillful manipulation and unscrupulous management of a corrupt ring, has rolled in upon us from the east with a Radical majority of nearly twenty thousand, whilst Allegheny answers from the west with almost half as much. A few of our old staunch Democratic counties, who, never faltering but true as steel, send us rays of light which shines through the darkness which at present surrounds us. Just now we have little heart to speak of the future. We would think it only a shower that fell yesterday, but it has the look of a flood.

Story of a Miser.

The Italie, Turin, says the following scene occurred a few days ago at a railway station:

On a bitter cold day a millionaire applied at a ticket-office for a third-class ticket.

"What!" exclaimed the official, who knew him, "you, sir, take a third-class ticket on such a day as this?"

"Why, I must," was the cool reply, "since there is no fourth-class."

"I beg your pardon," answered the official, handing him a ticket, "but there is—here is one."

The man of wealth hastily paid for it and rushed forward to take his place. On the doorkeeper asking to see his ticket, the traveler produced it, but was rather taken back on being told that the ticket would not do for him.

"And why not?" he exclaimed.

"Why, sir, because it is a dog-ticket!"

The Beaver Argus.

J. WEYAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

Beaver, Pa., October 16th, 1872.

HON William H. Seward of Auburn, New York, died at his residence in that city on last Thursday, aged 71 years.

THE Chicago relief and aid society has just published a statement showing that the total charitable distributions have thus far amounted to $5,500,444.09. The amounts received and distributed by other societies foot up to $439,704.50. The miscellaneous sums contributed to individuals and for specific objects are estimated at $500,000. The amounts furnished by Cincinnati, Milwaukee and St. Louis, and other cities, and expended by special commitees, foot up to $504,552. Total, $6,944,256.50.

TOO MANY people in this country are becoming indifferent as to whether the government is administered corruptly, or whether the elections are fair and free, or made a farce by purchase and fraud. As the country grows more populous and rich the sensitiveness of the people as to whether self government is to be preserved in its purity becomes blunted, and the "gentleman in politics" advocates the corruptest rings and the deepest dyed of the public plunderers whom he formerly denounced.

ATTENTION is directed to a communication in another column, addressed to J. C. Hart, esq., Clerk of the Courts for this county, by a number of the members of our bar. This communication was presented to Mr. Hart on last Monday, at 1 p. m., by Messrs H. Hice, S. B. Wilson, J. Wickham and H. R. Moore, esqs., who severally urged upon that officer the propriety of divulging all he knew relative to the matters embraced in their communication. Mr. Hart, after consulting some time with some of his friends decided on making no answer for one week.

BISMARK and the German authorities may do their best, by ordinance and prohibition, to turn back the tide of emigration to America, but a force works against them which it is difficult to overcome. The simple fact is that Germany is overcrowded. In Berlin thousands of poor people live in old railroad cars and omnibuses, and when the police drive them from these wretched retreats they have no where to go. The Germans looking toward a land where there is room enough for all, and to spare, will seek it; and official restriction, however rigid, cannot check the tendency.

ABOUT one week ago we received a letter from R. Layton, esq., of Beaver Falls, informing us that he was not receiving his ARGUS at that office, and when he inquired for it the Post master informed him that it did not arrive there. On last Monday we received a letter from J. L. B Dawson, requesting us to discontinue Mr. Layton's paper as he "will not lift it from the office," all of which goes to show that Dawson is a stupid villain, and should be looking through iron bars, instead of handing letters and newspapers from a Federal Post office.

THERE are hundreds of men in this county who would not trust General Hartranft with their pocket books of a dark night, and yet they gave him their ballots on Tuesday of last week for the highest office in the State. How can such conduct be reconciled with sound morality and good citizenship? is a question we submit to their own consciences, now that the smoke and heat of the battle has passed away. God will not hold him guiltless who sins in the face of light and knowledge.

THE New York Tribune sets the Presidential contest down in this wise:

IN view of the conduct of quite a number of men in this county during the campaign which has just closed, and whose names it is hardly worth while now to mention, we will take it as a favor if they never again talk to us about "political reform," "official corruption," or the impropriety of electing dishonest men to office. In the reform camp and before the battle began, they could talk about reform with the eloquence of a Cicero, and make one believe they were as fierce as Numidian lions; but when the long roll sounded, and the lines for the onset were forming, some of them hurried directly to the enemy's ranks, while others of them skulked to the rear and have neither been seen or heard of since.—For men of this stamp we have nothing but commisseration. Their cowardly instincts become their masters just when their expected help is needed, and we repeat they can do us no greater favor in the future than to cease sounding their holyday courage and flexible patriotism in our ears, and to refrain forevermore in trying to induce us to believe that they can be relied upon to give and take hard blows in any contest. In other words, they have not got the sand to stand with the weak against the strong, with the uninfluential against the influential, with right against might, and all efforts to convince us now that they are in possession of that article is simply labor lost.

THE voters of Pennsylvania decided last week by a majority of some 30,000 votes that Hartranft should be the Governor of the State. One half at least of those who voted for him, did so, believing him to be a corrupt official and a dishonest man; while the remaining half may have had donbts on these points. His opponent, Mr. Buckalew, had been in public life for twenty years, and in all that period the breath of suspicion has not even attached to his name, and yet the people throw him aside and take for their Governor a man who possessses the full confidence of no intelligent, honest man in the State. Is not this a lamentable condition of affairs? And is it not calculated to startle the well-meaning people of our Commonwealth.

There is a gentleman in Beaver who heard "Sam" Josephs—a political desperado of Philadelphia—say some six weeks or two months ago, that "if the voters of Pennsylvania elected Hartranft in preference to Buckalew as Governor of the State, they would thus record their deliberate judgment that they would rather have a damned rascal as their ruler than an honest man; and in that event Bill McMullin and myself will be available candidates before the people three years hence." Judging from the result on the 8th inst., we take it that Josephs is about right, and that either himself or McMullin will turn up as Hartranft's successor when the latter's term expires. "God save the Commonwealth."

THE result of the election held on the 8th inst may be briefly stated thus:

Hartranft and the whole Republican State ticket are elected by majorities ranging from 30,000 to 40,000; a majority of Republicans have been elected to Congress, and on joint ballot the Republicans will have a majority of from 15 to 20 in the Legislature.

In Ohio the Republicans have carried their State ticket, but lost the Legislature, which gives the Democrats and Liberal Republicans the next U. S. Senator.

Hendricks, Democrat and Liberal Republican, is elected Governor of Indiana, but the Republicans have carried the Legislature, which returns Morton to the U. S. Senate.

HERE are a few facts we wish the readers of the ARGUS to bear in mind:

1st. That James M. Allen, alias "Specks," is a notorious ballot-box stuffer, whose headquarters and home are at Philadelphia.

2d. That J. L. B. Dawson and Hal. Patterson, in their affidavits last week, while they did not swear positively that James M. Allen, alias Specks was not appointed Return Inspector for Beaver Falls, they still so twisted their oaths as to make the impression everywhere that no such appointment had ever been made.

3d. It is a well authenticated fact here, that Allen, alias Specks was appointed one of the Return Inspectors for that Borough, and measures are now on foot to ascertain on whose recommendation his appointment was made, and at whose suggestion Clerk Hart assumed to revoke it.

4th. When the names of the parties here who handled Allen, alias Specks, while that villain was in this county are known, the public will have no difficulty in determining who the scoundrels are who bargained with him in Philadelphia to come here to tamper with the ballots of our people.

Friends of popular liberty, watch and wait. By your votes given on the 8th inst. we judge you did not believe the startling facts laid before you in a circular issued from this office on the eve of the election.—All the material points in that circular are true, and the evidence to sustain them is at hand, and will be given in such a way that neither denials or oaths made by implicated parties will even shake, much less refute it.

THE most serious work which ever devolved upon the people of a State rests upon the citizens of Pennsylvania from this day. The exalted position of Governor of that great Commonwealth has been given to a man whose character is tainted with fraud, and whose sole prominence arises from the fact that he was chosen by the corrupt Cameron Ring at Harrisburg to do what official work they might require. He was the weakest candidate, considered in a personal point of view, who could, possibly, have been selected to head the Republican ticket. But his very weakness was his strength. He was so destitute of character and position that the Ring which had made him felt sure of him, and was willing to devote to his election a fair proportion of the money they had stolen from the public. The Administration at Washington adopted him and put in action for his benefit all the resources of the Government. But even this was not enough. The State organization of the Grant party, and the National, both agreed that the defeat of Hartranft would be fatal to them. They therefore resolved that he should not be defeated, and took their measures to that end.

We do not to-day dwell upon that outrage and insult to the very spirit of law and decency contained in the pardon of Yerkes upon the eve of the election, for the purpose of extorting a false affidavit in Hartranft's favor. This prostitution of the Executive prerogative is a mere trivial indecency compared with the enormous crime which has been deliberately plotted for a month, and was yesterday consummated. There is not in Philadelphia nor in New York an intelligent man who does not know the general process by which the vote in Pennsylvania was falsified, and many of them know the details. The first step was an immense fraudulent registry, which raised the voting population at one stride from 130,000 to 165,000. To personate the names thus fraudulently inscribed negroes were hired in Washington and in Virginia, and gangs of repeaters under some of the most notorious ruffians in New York were engaged to join in the business. This was universal publicity: The friends of Hartranft chuckled and bragged over it. Well-to-do citizens belonging to the Union League Club said, no longer than last Saturday, "We will give Hartranft whatever majority he needs, whether it is 5000, 10,000, or 15,000." They were better than their boasts; probably because the need was greater than their fears. Terrified by the accounts of Liberal gains in the State, they determined not to be chary of their votes, and by false voting and false counting they scored up the incredible majority of 20,000!

It remains with the people of Pennsylvania to decide whether they will vindicate their right to self-government, or submit to grind in the mills of the bandits who have robbed them of their citizenship. They yesterday elected Charles R. Buckalew to be their Governor. A handful of rogues, representing the party in power, violated the ballot-boxes, and substituted for the elect of the people a creature of their own, a man of tainted moral character and greatly inferior abilities. To submit to a robbery like this, to call it a mere political act and let the matter rest there, is cowardly and criminal. If Hartranft takes his seat there is no law but anarchy in Pensylvania. We ask all sensible men there and elsewhere to reflect for a moment after the heat of the fight is over, and say if they think republican government can endure, if offenses like this are to be encouraged by impunity to repetition.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE Pittsburgh Republican papers have already taken each other by the lugs, relative to the newly elected Sheriff's printing in that county. The Dispatch claims the lion's share on the ground that it is really the only Republican paper in the city which gave the Sheriff elect (Hare) an honest support, while the Gazette insists that it was its friend from first to last, and stood by him through thick and thin. We are a little afraid our brethern up the river will soon convince the public that "spoils" the objective point in the generality of political contests in Allegheny county.

HERE AND THERE.

—It is suspected that the Siamese Twins are after an office and determined to be on the winning side. Chang is an enthusiastic Greeley man, while Eng is quite as earnestly for Grant. If Eng should determine to accept the consulship in his native land, under General Grant's second term, without Chang's consent, there is some curiosity to know what the latter would do about it.

—Some few years since one of the clerks in a banking house in Albany, having an intimation that it was proposed to dispense with his services, boldly entered the private office of the president and said:

"Mr. President, I have made up my mind that the interests of this bank require that either you or myself should leave its service. As you are the leading owner of the bank, and have a large family to support, I have concluded to retire and leave you in your position." The young man "retired."

—Is insanity a necessary condition of being able to speak the German language? Probably not; but there is said to be a girl in Madison, Wisconsin, who lately lost her reason and with it her knowedge of English; but at the same time she acquired a miraculous command of German, which she had never learned or heard spoken to any extent. Philosophers are called upon to explain this phenomenon. If we were a philosopher we would say that it is probably a lie.

—A Washington dispatch says:—The President on Wednesday received a dispatch from Russell Errett, Chairman of the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania, saying that under no circumstances must Forney be allowed to stump the State for Grant and Wilson, because the people will not listen to him, and have lost confidence in him.

—Stories about the sagacity of cats and dogs are always acceptable, and that is why so many are invented. A good one comes from Kentucky about what might properly be called a feline Nimrod. A sick lady at Lebanon was required by her doctor to eat wild meat only, but as the ceder forests of Lebanon did not abound in game there was some difficulty in obtaining a constant supply. The family cat, noticing this, went forth and soon retuaned with a wild rabbit, which exploit she repeated every day until the lady recovered. She never indulged in rabbit herself, and discontinued her hunting excursions as soon as her mistress desired no more of that kind of "wild fowl."

—Dealers in obscene books are having rather a hard time of it in England. One infamous fellow, Henry Judge, has been sentenced to two years hard labor; and when these are over he will have to find securities for good behavior. Judge's lawyer argued in defence of his client that as the classics are sometimes obscene, they too should be suppressed by law—a silly fallacy hardly requiring exposure. It is true that there are Greek and Latin texts which are occasionally indelicate; but these books are not sought and read for the sake of such passages, nor can they have any bad effect on a student of average brains.

—An amphibious man is a novelty, however common mermaids may be. Allessandro de Angelio of Rome, follows the moist business of a "professor of bathing," and, as we are informed, for the last twenty-five years has passed ten hours per diem in the water, like a two legged dolphin. We should like to know whether the professor has suffered a sea change into something rich and strange, whether his cuticle has put on a scaly appearance; whether he has to any extent become web-fingered or web-toed.—One thing is certain, it cannot cost the professor much for clothes.

—The corner-stone of the monument to the memory of Miles Standish was laid on the 7th inst, at Duxbury, with appropriate elocutionary exercises. The orators had a good deal to say in honor of the Puritans; but a Boston paper calls attention to the fact already touched upon by The Zion's Herald, that the Pilgrims who landed from the Mayflower on Plymouth Rock in December, 1620, were not Puritans, but were in England persecuted by Puritans. The first Puritans came in 1630 to Boston and Salem. We suppose there is a good deal more talk than knowledge of the Puritans in Massachusetts generally.

—A telegram from Sioux City, Oct. 10, says that city and vicinity was visited by quite a severe earthquake shock on the day previous. The people rushed out of their houses, and considerable excitement prevailed for a brief period. The shock only lasted about a minute and a half, but during that time crockery and bottles were thrown down and buildings were pretty well shaken up. No serious damage was done to property, however. It is reported that at Fort Randall, Dakota, the shock was more severe, and that there was great excitement. At Yankton the shock, although faint, was distinctly felt, but no damage was done. Reports from other portions of Dakota show that the shock was felt, more or less, at all principal points.

—The announcement of the death of "Fanny Fern" comes upon the upon the public suddenly, although her friends have long known the feeble state of her health. Her loss will be deplored by a wide circle of friends and admirers, and her husband will have general and sincere sympathy in his affliction.

—A queer people: There cannot be any truth in the adage says the Philadelphia Inquirer, "blood will tell," if it is to be applied to other races than the Anglo Saxon, or in less moderate intermixtures of the vital fluid are superior to all the blood which preceded it. Here, for instance, is Alsace a German province in its origin. A part of Germany during the dark ages, and the better life of modern Europe, which by the fortunes of war, was transferred by the treaties of Ryswick and Munster to France, the inhabitents maintained, under the conquerors, their German habits and German language. They were essentially Germans who had fallen under the denomination of France. Germany recaptured the district which had formerly been Germany, and the people were relegated to their old allegiance. How have they taken it? By declarations that they never will be Germans, by determination to secede from the government under which their fathers lived for centuries. They have become exiles, and left Alsace to settle in France, where they may enjoy the rights which were originally acceded to them as a conquered people, and be independent of the decendants of their hated countrymen. This is strange, and is one of the unwordly romances of a century filled with remarkable events.

The Triumph of Fraud.

Address from the Liberal State Committee to the People of Pennsylvania:

The successful consummation of a measure of fraud in this city, that must appal alike the guilty authors and their no less guilty respectable abettors, has made Philadelphia appear to give the unexampled majority of over 20,000 in favor of continued corrupt rule in Pennsylvania.

With every channel of power ready to aid in executing the systematic defiance of the popular will; with debauched or pliant canvassers to register 25,000 fraudulent names; with the most desperate repeaters of three cities to vote the registry; with abundance of money, plundered from the people to pay them; with election officers selected expressly to receive every vote offered in favor of the Ring; with a police force to pilot repeaters to their localities, and protect them in polling illegal votes; with officers of the law to guarantee their immunity from punishment, and with a large preponderance of our citizens, who claim to be the champions of morality and reform, giving their unqualified sanction to what they knew to be a deliberately-planned pollution of the ballot-box—the result is but the logical result of the rule that is now supremely enthroned in our City and State.

Nor was this gigantic system of fraud confined to Philadelphia. In the principal cities and towns throughout the State thousands of illegal votes have been polled. The Liberal cause was thus overwhelmed in Reading, Chester, West Chester, Columbia, Harrisburg, Pittsburg, and other localities, while the rural districts exhibit large and uniform gains. I am warranted in announcing that the large majority is wholly fraudulent.

Friends of good government let no triumph of lawlessness deter you from giving your best energies to the cause. The highest prerogative of a free people has been violently usurped by insolent and debauched power, and the people must resent it and resent it promptly, or give unquestioned license to wrong. Now, more than ever in this contest, is the election of Horace Greeley to the Presidency a supreme necessity, if peace and honest government are not to perish from the annals of our history. Right must triumph sooner or later, and it will yet triumph in this desperate struggle if the people shall prove faithful to themselves, to their laws, and to their country.

A. K. McCLURE,
Chairman of Liberal Republican Committee.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

Don't Give up the Fight.

The Chicago Tribune of this morning says:

The most noticeable fact of the canvass in these States, as well as in the previous ones in North Carolina, Vermont and Maine, is that the Administration party had all the money, all the office-holders, all the election machinery, most of the large corporations, and all the adventitious aid which help to decide a doubtful contest. Another instructive fact is that a percentage of the Democratic vote was cast for the Republican ticket large enough to offset the Liberal Republican vote in each of the three States. Although this change has resulted in the success of the ticket which we deem opposed to the best interests of the country, it points to a speedy dissolution of both the old parties, and this we cannot but regard as a benefit to the whole people. It is impossible that the Republican party should long hold together without any principles to contend for or promote. The cry that the liberties of the blacks are still in danger—which has after all been the most potent weapon of the canvass—being not true in point of fact, will not avail much longer. The Liberal party is the party of the future, notwithstanding the adverse result of yesterday's election.

To the Liberals of Illinois, to the Liberals everywhere, we say. Go on bravely in the path you have entered; your cause is just, your principles are as necessary to the preservation of good government to-day as they were yesterday. It is still possible to elect your excellent State ticket in Illinois. We shall yield nothing in our zeal for Greeley and Koerner so long as there is a vote to be gained or an inch of ground to contend for; and after the contest is over we shall still contend for the grand and ennobling principles of peace, reconciliation and reform, which are more precious to us than any party or any men.

THE HARTRANFT ELECTION OUTRAGE.

How the Cameron Ring Elected Hartranft—Enormous Frauds—Corrupt Use of Large Sums of Money.

[From the Special Correspondent of the Tribune.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—It is not pleasant to linger about a lost battlefield to gather information of the dishonorable arts practiced by the enemy to rob a righteous cause of a victory fairly won; but it is due to the Liberals of the country that they should know why their brethren here who went into yesterday's contest with such buoyant hopes of success came out utterly crushed and beaten. There is no need to recite the causes of the disaster to our friends here. They know them only too well. But they want honest men everywhere to hear the shameful story of fraud and wrong, and to understand that it was from no failure on their part to do their duty, that the plunderer of the State Treasury and the accomplice of convict thieves is elected Governor of Pennsylvania.

Our defeat was owing to two causes—fraud and the lavish use of money by our adversaries. These were more general, systematic and skillful than were ever practiced in this or any other State. Their magnitude was so enormous that the very men who devised them and set up the machinery for their perpetration were amazed last night at the success of their schemes, and expressed fears to each other that "the thing had been carried too far." The frauds were of four descriptions: Repeating, practiced chiefly in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, and Reading; colonizing the negroes, which was done in all the cities and large towns east of the mountains; substitution of Hartranft ballots for Buckalew ballots by the Republican inspectors before they were put in the boxes; and false counting. All of these methods were practiced extensively in this city, but the latter was implicitly relied upon to supplement the others, and make the majority as large as might be necessary to overcome the honest vote of the country precincts. The aggregate amount added by these methods to Hartranft's vote in Philadelphia may be fairly estimated at 10,000. It might as well have been 20,000, and would have been if his election had required that figure. The City Ring have fixed his majority finally at about 17,000, I believe. Last night, before they were sure of how successful the plans of Cameron had been in the interior cities they gave the figures for all the wards but three, not estimated, but with exactitude, and they aggregated over 19,000 majority. The three wards kept back would have raised it over 22,000. After they heard from Harrisburg, Reading, and other towns they revised the figures so as to make their frauds a little less glaring.

The very large amount of money controlled by the Ring made the perpetration of every kind of fraud not only possible but easy. They paid out over $200,000 in Philadelphia during the past week, and raised $75,000 additional on the day before election. Their disbursements in the State unquestionably exceeded $500,000, not including the sums raised by local committees. They used the greater part of their money as a corruption fund to bribe Democratic inspectors and to buy the floating vote of the cities. They found plenty of Democrats belonging to the class of corner-grocery politicians, who were ready to take their money, and who did them good service in return among their fellows. The surprising lack of thorough organization among the Democrats released the unprincipled element which is to be found in all parties from the usual restraints of party discipline, and left them free to find a market for their votes and services. Every man of them knew where to go to sell out. The Cameron Ring had as good as advertised to the world that they meant to carry the election with money, whatever it cost, and everybody knew they had plenty of it and were useing it lavishly. In effect, they notified every fellow who wanted to sell himself that the money was ready for him.

The Liberal and Democratic Committees had not the means to counteract the evil influence of the immense corruption funds of the Administration, and of the State and City Rings. If they had possessed the resources of their adversaries and had been capable of employing them as unscrupulously there would have been a different story to tell of yesterday's election. The allied Reform Committees, not only had no funds to use corruptly if they had been disposed, but they were greatly straitened to pay the regular legitimate expenses of the canvass. The Liberal Republicans there gave Buckalew the full strength of their vote throughout the State, and did fully as well as could be expected. No part of the blame of defeat rests upon them. Nor do I think the Democratic leaders nor the honest masses of their party failed in their duty.

There was not the efficient organization which the Democrats have had in all the closely contested elections of former years, and which was essential to defeat the schemes of the Ring. The managers, no doubt, did as well as they knew how, and if they fell short of what was expected of them, it was not for lack of earnest wish for the success of the cause. If there had been no remissness in this respect, however, and if our friends had been supplied with all the money they had honest use for, the result could not have been altered. The Ring was determined to win. They had the power to count Hartranft in whatever the majority might have been for Buckalew. They were prepared to do it, and boasted of it. We were helpless in their hands. The election was a monstrous fraud from first to last, and honest men might just as well have staid at home and saved themselves the trouble of voting.

When the smoke of the fight clears off a little, and our people revive sufficiently to get on their legs and compare experiences, we shall be able to give the facts in detail of the way in which we were cheated out of the victory.

Grant Pulled Hartranft Through.

From the Philadelphia Press.

Without questioning the motives of those who have resolved to perpetuate an odious local rule—insufferable in its arrogance and most extravagant and costly in its actions—we shall be profoundly gratified if our apprehensions, repeatedly uttered, are not confirmed. Grave and momentous trusts have again been confided to men we conceive to be unworthy. It is, however, in the nature of things that the agencies again fastened upon the State may profit by experience, and, satiated with abundant wealth, and weary of tempting opportunities, may turn over a new leaf—make, in fact, a new book of better administration for the future. If so, we shall confess ourselves mistaken, and be as free to praise as we have been bold to oppose. It would be folly to allege that the great majority for Hartranft is the origin of fraud. We believe it to be a legitimate majority—the growth of several causes that lie so plainly on the surface of the contest that all may understand and study. General Grant pulled this ticket through.

In any ordinary contest it would have been beaten out of sight; but his name and the fear that its defeat would damage him in November rallied to it thousands who closed their eyes to the proofs we daily spread before them, and constrained many to certify to the deservings of candidates of questionable record. These, local oppressors are now enthroned and entrenched in power. Mr. Cameron will undoubtedly be reelected United States Senator, armed with new prerogatives to persecute and to punish. His iron hand will be laid upon every independent spirit in the State, and he will again quote the prestige and wield the patronage of the President to forward his designs—unless, indeed, Gen. Grant will do the independent people of Pennsylvania the justice to believe that their protest against this reckless man, however fruitless at the election, has sprung from pure and honest motives.

Incipient Consumption.

The symptoms which precede Consumption are mostly of an insidious character, but quite marked enough to indicate to the intelligent physician what course of treatment ought to be followed in order to prevent its full development. If these earlier monitors were heeded, Consumption, as a wide spread and devastating disease, would be almost unknown. Dr. Keyser's Lung Cure, in all recent attacks, will cleanse the morbid poison from the system and restore that circle of life which is too valuable to be estimated by mere dollars and cents. How many cases are there like that of Mr. Irvin, published below, which, if treated like this, would soon get well:

DR. KEYSER: You have asked my opinion about your cough medicine, and I can cheerfully say that I have used your Pectoral Syrup on one occasion during last spring. I thought at one time I was surely going to have some serious pulmonary disease, as I coughed up large quantities of matter. I found my disease would not yield to anything else, as I tried various remedies, and after the first dose of your Pectoral I received quite a relief, and I had not used a whole bottle until I was entirely cured.

Dr. Keyser's Lung Cure is sold at $1.50 per bottle, at his medical office, 167 Liberty street Pittsburgh. If your druggist does not keep it remit $5 to Dr. Keyser and he will send it by express. Pamphlet on Chronic Lung diseases sent wherever it is wanted by mail.

Eight Years Lost.

"Oh! my long lost daughter!" exclaimed a rather respectable looking German woman on Walnut street, near,———, Monday afternoon, as she rushed with outstretched arms towards a little girl, who was sauntering along carelessly.

The girl frightened at the woman, thinking her mad, took flight screaming and weeping. But the pretended mother soon overtook her, and while shedding tears, covered her with caresses, conjuring her to look well, and see if she could not remember the face of her mother.

But the girl was all the more frightened, and cried the louder, until two individuals from a house of very doubtful character, after a skirmish with the woman, took the little girl away.

By this time, quite a crowd had collected, and the woman, appealing to them, told her story. She lived near Fourth and Christian. When her baby—that same little girl—was quite young, she, being very poor, had put it in charge of her husband's mother. After a time, the grandmother, growing tired of the child, had delivered it over to strangers. Since that time, eight years since, the mother has been searching for her daughter in vain, until week before last, when she heard that she was in a house of ill fame. The unhappy mother, who is married again and "well off," then watched the streets, in hope of seeing her little girl, and rescuing her from the ignominy that awaits. Only that day had she caught sight of her; and now she, her only daughter, long searched for in anguish and in vain, was again torn from her to be thrust again in the sinks of iniquity, and live the life that is a perpetual shame. It was hard; and all who looked on pitied the poor woman. Is her story true? It appeared so.—Sunday Dawn.

☞ The diamond excitement is reviving in San Francisco. One of the companies exhibit diamonds and rubies valued at many thousands of dollars, which they claim to be found in Arizona. Over three thousand acres of land have been surveyed, but the location will be kept secret until government patent is obtained.

THAT the arrangements were perfected to pollute the ballot-box at Beaver Falls on the 8th inst., is now a clearly established fact. Every good citizen in the county, owes it now to himself, and owes it to the cause of popular liberty, to do what he can to bring the scoundrels to light who would thus destroy the last barrier the people have to maintain their rights.—Let the villains, who did this thing, be unearthed, let them be who they may, or belong to whatever party they may.

Training Girls for Wives.—Training girls for household duties ought to be considered as necessary as instruction in reading, writing, and arithmetic, and quite as universal. We are in our houses more than half our existence, and it is the household surroundings which affect most largely the happiness or misery of domestic life. If the wife knows how to "keep house," if she understands how to "set a table;" if she has learned how things ought to be cooked, how beds should be made, how carpets should be swept, how the furniture should be dusted, how the clothing should be repaired, and turned, and altered, and renovated; if she knows how purchases can be made to the best advantage, and understands the laying in of provisions, how to make them go farthest and last longest; if she appreciates the importance of system, order, tidiness, and the quiet management of children and servants, then she knows how to make a little heaven of home; how to win her children from the street; how to keep her husband from the club-house, the gaming-table and the wine-cup. Such a family will be trained to social respectability, to business success, and to efficiency and usefulness in whatever position may be allotted to them.

It may be safe to say that not one girl in ten in our large towns and cities enters married life who has learned to bake a loaf of bread, to purchase a roast, to dust a painting, to sweep a carpet, or to cut and fit and make her own dress. How much the perfect knowledge of these things bears upon the thrift, the comfort and the health of families may be conjectured, but not calculated by figures. It would be an immeasurable advantage to make a beginning by attaching a kitchen to every girl's school in the nation, and have lessons given daily in the preparation of all the ordinary articles of food and drink for the table, and how to purchase them in the market to the best advantage, with the result of a large saving of money, an increase of comfort and higher health in every family in the land.

For the Beaver Argus.

Cuban War.

MR. EDITOR: October 10th, 1872, is the fourth anniversary of the declaration of Cuban independence. October 10th, 1868, Cespedes, at Yara, issued his first proclamation announcing armed and organized resistance to the Spanish Government of the Island. The patriots have practically abolished slavery in Cuba. They have declared in favor of religious liberty. The new Constitution adopted by the patriots contains the following provisions: "All the inhabitants of the Republic of Cuba are absolutely free. All the citizens are considered soldiers of the Liberating army. The House of Representatives shall not abridge the freedom of religion, nor of the press, nor of public meetings, nor of education, nor of petition, nor any inalienable right of the people." The document is signed by Carlos Manuel Cespedes and all the delegates. The success of the Cuban Patriots is only a question of time. The recent Spanish atrocities show the desperate character of their condition. Christendom sympathizes with the struggling Cubans, and the maledictions of the world are heaped upon their cruel Spanish oppressors.

All Patriots and Christians should earnestly pray for the success of the insurgents; that the gem of the Antilles may be delivered from foreign domination and become right speedily a Christian Republic, guaranteeing and guarding sacredly all the inalienable rights of man. Their recent success gives hope that their holy purpose may be, ere long, triumphant. WYANDOTTE.

☞ Bert & Walsh have the best assortment of hats, caps, trunks and umbrellas.

DEAR SIR:—On the third day of October, 1872, by virtue of an Act of Assembly authorizing you to appoint two Return Inspectors of elections for the borough of Beaver Falls, in this county, you appointed as one of such Inspectors a man calling himself, among other names, James M. Allen or James M. Allen, sr., a stranger in our community, and universally known as a "repeater" and a scoundrel. One of the undersigned, a gentleman in whose veracity the other subscribers hereto have the most undoubting confidence, saw the certificate of Allen's appointment in your office and in your own hand writing; and another unimpeachable witness will testify, that he was present when you delivered it to a citizen of Beaver Falls. Indeed, so far as we are informed, you have never denied that you appointed Allen one of said Inspectors; on the contrary, you have admitted it to more than one of the undersigned.

Now, in view of your certificate, published on Monday, the 7th instant, that no PETITION asking the appointment of said Allen was ever filed in your office, as well as the affidavits of J. L. B. Dawson and Harry Patterson published therewith, that THEY did not recommend said appointment; and further, in view of the fact, that your certificate aforesaid has been improperly used and construed as a denial that said appointment was ever made, the undersigned, as members of the bar of Beaver county, and without distinction of party, beg leave to respectfully request written answers to the following inquiries:

FIRST. At whose request, instance or recommendation (made either in writing or otherwise) did you appoint the said Allen a Return Inspector of elections for the borough of Beaver Falls, or with whom did you consult relative to such appointment before making the same, and when and to whom did you deliver the certificate of appointment.

Second, At whose instance, request or suggestion, and under what circumstances did you assume to revoke or cancel the appointment of said Allen?

Third, Please furnish us with any other information, relative to this matter whereof you may be possessed.

As your action in making this appointment was of a purely public and official character and not a thing to be surrounded with mystery, you will readily perceive, that, under existing circumstances the foregoing inquiries are strictly pertinent and proper, and such as any citizen desirous of probing an attempted fraud has a right to make. We as members of the bar and officers of the courts whereof you are clerk, are especially interested in having the charge now being made against yourself fully cleared up. We therefore trust that your answer to the above questions will be so full and frank as to completely allay all suspicions of any criminal intent on your part, and cause the respect and confidence with which we have hitherto regarded you to remain unimpaired. Hoping for a speedy reply, we remain very respectfully,

Shoes! Shoes!—Umstead & Hartzog make a specialty of ladie's wear, having taken the premium at the Fair for the best made slippers and gaiters; they are confident they can please all who like a real fine shoe. Broadway, New-Brighton.

Our Poor.—The number of poor and helpless people at present in our county home numbers fifty. Several others are provided for by the public at Dixmont and Harrisburg. These latter have mental disorders which require medical attention, which could not be extended to them at the home for the poor in this county.

Receipts and Expenditures of Beaver County Fair.—The receipts and expenditures of the Fair, which was held in this place on the 25th, 26th, and 27th of September, were as follows: Receipts, $3,684 20; expenditures, $2,184 20. Balance on hand $1,5000. Financially considered the Fair was a very decided success.

Joseph Fleming, Esq., of Moon township, has our thanks, "irrespective of party," for a basket of very large, fine, apples of the pumpkin species; also, for a basket of quinces. May his shadow never grow less.

The Schœppe-Steinnecke will case has assumed a new phase. The petition filed by Dr. Schœppe in 1869 has been withdrawn from the files of the Orphans' Court of Baltimore, and on Wednesday his counsel filed a petition with the Register which claims for him the right of administrating upon Miss Steinnecke's estate, because of his alleged marriage to her on the 14th of January of that year, a date subsequent to the execution of the will in his favor under which he claimed in his former petition. Of course if Schœppe was legally married to the lady all wills made prior to that event are, under the law of Maryland, revoked.

☞ The election for Governor is over in this State; but the sale of men and boy's clothes is still going on at S & J Snellenburg's, Broadway, New-Brighton.

The tens of thousands of corn-shocks are yielding their golden wealth to the merry huskers just now. Not for years has there been so abundant a corn crop in this section as that of the present season.

Pass Around the Scamp.—A horse doctor, calling himself Dr. Bazzett, medium height, dark hair, about thirty years of age, is prowling round the country, swindling the printers, hotels, etc. He probably changes his name at each place. Kick him out of town and send bill to us.—Mt. Vernon Republican.

☞ Bert & Walsh are agents for the Singer sewing machine.

Jubilant.—The editor of the New Castle Guardian was, at the election on the 8th inst., elected to the Legislature. The Gazette of that place describes the successful candidate's feelings as follows:

> Every time he thinks of it his heart flops up and down like a churn-dasher. Sensations of unutterable joy caper over it like young goats on a stable roof, and thrill through it like spanish needles through a pair of tow-linen trowsers. As a goslin swimmeth with delight in a mud-puddle, so the Guardian man swims in a sea of glory. Visions of ecstatic rapture thicker than the hairs on a Blackning-brush, and brighter than the hues of a humming bird's pinions, visit him in his slumbers. He whirls around in his legislative importance like a bumble-bee under a tumbler. He feels as though he could lift himself up by his boot-straps high above the city of New Castle and float away as smoothly and noiselessly as the fairy queen in her golden chariot through the rose-tinted clouds of the etherial regions.

No Tables This Week.—Owing to the unusual length of the ticket this year, and the great length of time required by the clerks to add up the returns, we are unable to lay the result of the recent election in this county, in a tabular form, before our readers this week. It will appear in our next issue. We may state however that Gen. Hartranft's majority is something over 800 hundred in the county.

A Young Man Killed.—A young man named George Goas, of New Sewickley township, was killed a couple of weeks ago, while working at a bridge near Harkin's Mill, in that township. He was struck with a guy-pole on the head and breast with such force as to cause his death in a few minutes. He was about 22 years of age.

Pretty Women.—After all, is the world so very absurd in its love of pretty women? Is woman so very ridiculous in her chase after beauty? A pretty woman is doing a woman's work in the world, not making speeches, nor making puddings, but making life sunnier and more beautiful. Man has forsworn the pursuit of beauty altogether. Does he seek it for himself, he is guessed to be poetic, there are whispers that his morals are no better than they should be. In society resolute to be ugly there is no post for an Adonis, but that of a model or guardsman.

But woman does for mankind what man ceases to do. Her aim from childhood is to be beautiful. Even as a school-girl she notes the progress of her charms, the deepening color of her hair, the growing symmetry of her arms, the ripening contour of her cheek. We watch with silent interest, the mysterious reveries of the maiden; she is dreaming of coming beauty, and panting for the glories of eighteen.

Insensibly she becomes an artist, her room is a studio, her glass an academy. The joy of her toilet is the joy of Raphael over his canvass, of Michael Angelo over his marble. She is creating beauty in the silence and loneliness of her chamber; she grows like any art creation, the result of patience, of hopes, of a thousand delicate touchings and retouchings.

Woman is never complete. A restless night undoes the beauty of the day; sunshine blurs the evanescent coloring of her cheek; frost nips the tender outlines of her face into sudden harshness. Care ploughs its lines across her brow; mother-hood destroys the elastic lightness of her form; the bloom of her cheek, the quick flash of her eye, fade and vanish as the years go by.

But woman is still true to her ideal. She won't know when she is beaten, and she manages to steal fresh victories even in her defeat. She invents new conceptions of womanly grace; she rallies at forty, and fronts us with the beauty of womanhood; she makes a last stand at sixty, with the beauty of age. She falls like Cæsar, wrapping her mantle around her—" buried in woolen! 'twould a saint provoke." Death listens pitifully to the longings of a lifetime, and the wrinkled face smiles with something of the prettiness of eighteen.

Testimony.—Sure cure for white swelling:

NEW BRIGHTON, Nov. 15, 1872.

I wish to say a word to those who may be afflicted with White Swelling, in favor of R Steinfeld's medicine.

I have been afflicted for sixteen years with it. It has of late years attacked me annually, and I have suffered almost death. Have consulted eminent physicians, who told me they could do nothing for me: that it would take its course, &c., that all they could do would be to cut it open and take out the bone.

About six weeks ago I was attacked with it and lay suffering for three weeks, with no relief from pain except while under the influence of morphine. I was expecting it to heal. I called in Mr. Steinfeld to look at it He assured me that he could cure it in eight days. After trying so many things that had failed, I had little faith, but told him to try it. So he applied his Salve, and I got a good night's sleep without morphine. In one week I was able to go to work, and now feel quite well. I can and do earnestly recommend his medicine to any who may be similarly afflicted. JOHN MCLAIN.

Fire at Butler.—A dispatch from Butler, dated October 11th, says: "A terrible fire is raging here. Two livery stables are burning rapidly. It is stated there were three houses reduced to ashes.

The cause of the fire has not yet been ascertained. A torchlight procession and fireworks were displaying when the fire began, through which it is thought it originated.

One whole square would have been consumed had it not been for the terrific efforts of the people.

The Manufacture of Cider.

The following is the process by which a Connecticut cider-maker manufactures this healthful beverage: Cider is the expressed juice of apples, the same as wine is the juice of the grape, the quality of which depends upon several conditions. Perhaps it makes less difference regarding the quality if it is to be used for vinegar; but if it is to be used as a beverage, which is considered by many to possess valuable medical qualities, that it is of the utmost importance that it be the best possible, whereby it is rendered peculiarly wholesome and more valuable, if the same is manufactured for sale, for a much better price can be obtained for a finer article than the miserable stuff which generally passes for cider, which is made in a dirty, slovenly manner, and at about the same expense as though better made.

In the first place, if the cider is intended to be kept for some length of time, it is better if the same is made in cool weather, as rapid fermentation will thereby be avoided. It is also important that the apples be fully ripe, and also sound; it is poor policy in attempting to make prime cider from small, wormy, unripe or unsound apples, although these can be used if the same is to be turned into vinegar, where the poorer quality of the cider is lost in its increased acidity. The apples are to be ground to pomace, and it makes but little difference what the mill is, if it is thorough in its work, and reduces the fruit to a perfect pulp, so that the juice can be the more easily and thoroughly expressed. When so ground the quality of the cider is considerably improved if the pomace is allowed to stand for a short time, or as long as can be without fermentation, in the vat or tub before pressing. But, before fermentation takes place, the juice should be pressed as thoroughly as may conveniently be.

In the management of the liquor the great object should be to free it from all sediment; if this is properly done at first it will be comparatively easy to regulate the subsequent fermentation. A good mode of accomplishing this is to pass the cider through a filter of sand and charcoal as it comes from the press. Clear river sand, rather coarse, is best. Put the sand and charcoal into a tub or vat for the purpose, in alternate layers, having the coal reduced to pieces from half an inch to an inch square; lap a piece of flannel over the top, and as fast as the cider comes from the press pass it through the filter, whereby all the pomace and other impurities are removed. If the flannel becomes so loaded with pomace as to impede the passage of the cider, it may be removed and washed and a new piece substituted.

If this filtration is well done as the cider passes from the sand, it will appear to be perfectly pure, and should immediately be put into casks and placed in the cellar. Another very important item consists in the cask; unless this is perfectly clean and sweet, the effort to obtain good cider will have been in vain. The casks for keeping cider should be made of the best of oak, and well bound. The cellar should also be cool and dark, the temperature being kept as nearly the same as possible, in order that the cider may remain in very nearly the same state. The exclusion of light is also for the same purpose, since the tendency of light is to aid and assist decomposition. After the casks are placed in the cellar, the bungs should be taken out until fermentation has subsided, which is very much retarded in consequence of the filtration. During the fermentation the barrels should be kept entirely filled, so that all the froth or scum may work out and be removed.

When the fermentation subsides the bung may be put in lightly, and when no froth or foam rises, the same may be driven in tightly. Cider thus put up will sometimes keep well with no further care for years, but as a general rule it is better to rack the same off into clean casks the latter part of winter.—There will generally be but little sediment, but in drawing off much care should be exercised not to run in any of the dregs; if the drawing off is carefully done, and the cider put into sweet casks, it will keep a long time. If desired for bottling this should be done the May or June following. Different substances have been recommended for keeping cider by putting the same into the casks, such as clay, salt, alum, mustard seed, fresh meet, eggs, sulphate of lime, and a hundred other things which have been used, but with less success than when cared for as above, since the tendency of these articles is to deaden and lessen the most essential qualities. Made as above recommended, its taste is spirited and lively, with a fine, rich, vinous flavor.

To cleanse musty or foul casks, put in a quanty of unslacked lime, and then pour in boiling water until the same is slacked. Put in the bung and shake until the water and lime has come in contact with every part of the barrel. Let it stand six or eight hours: empty out, smell the cask, and if not clean repeat the operation; and, after having again emptied out the lime, burn a strip of cloth dipped in brimstone in the cask, fastening it by the bung; a cask must be foul indeed that can withstand this process.—Rural Home.

The Philadelphia Bulletin evidently does not intend to wallow in the mire for nothing. Having once got down so low as to support the Penitentiary candidate, it demands now the excommunication of all who refused to follow its unscrupulous footsteps. Speaking of the election of Hartranft, which will stand as the monumental fraud of the nineteenth century, it breaks out with this characteristic screech of a Ring organ: "We have helped to win this great victory for Hartranft. We want no help in November from the men who deserted us in October! We protest in the name of the workingmen of the Republican party, in advance, against any recognition of John W. Forney or Gov. Curtin as advocates of President Grant in the remaining campaign. They would have beaten him, yesterday, if they could. We do not want their service now.

"McMullin, Roach and Specks."—These three notorious Philadelphia repeaters and ballot-box stuffers, who "pitched their tents" some time ago in Beaver Falls, we understand, created so much suspicion in that place, that a watch was kept over them by some of the best citizens, for some time before they made their hasty exit. It was surmised by some prominent men there that they intended to rob the Economy Savings Bank in that place; whereas their objective point was only to stuff the ballot-boxes of that borough, and thus cheat the people out of their choice of officers.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Proclamation of the President.

WASHINGTON, October 11, 1872.

By the President of the United States of America:

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS, The revolution of another year has again brought the time when it is usual to look back upon the past, and publicly thank the Almighty for his mercies and his blessings; and,

WHEREAS, If any one people has more occasion than another for such thankfulness it is the citizens of the United States, whose government is their creature, subject to their behests, who have reserved to themselves ample civil and religious freedom and equality before the law, who, during the last twelve months, have enjoyed exemption from any grievous or general calamity, and to whose prosperity in agriculture, manufacturers and commerce has been vouchsafed.

Therefore, By these considerations, I recommend that on Thursday, the twenty-eighth day of November next, the people shall meet in their respective places of worship, and there make their acknowledgments to God for his kindness and bounty.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this eleventh day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and of the Independence of the United States the ninety-seventh. U. S. GRANT.

By the President:
HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.

Treatment of Dyspepsia.—According to Dio Lewis, in every case of indigestion, no matter what may be its character, slapping the bowels with the flat of the hands on rising in the morning, four hours after breakfast and in the evening on going to bed is excellent treatment. "I cannot conceive of a case of chronic indigestion which such manipulation would not relieve. If the patient be so weak that he can't perform these slappings and kneadings upon his own person, the hand of a discreet person should be employed.

It is marvelous how the body, the stomach for example, which, when these manipulations are first practiced, may be so very tender that the slightest touch can hardly be borne—It is marvelous how in two or three weeks a blow almost as hard as the hand can give is borne without suffering. If you have a pain in the side or across the chest, percussion will relieve it almost instantly. But constipation, dyspepsia, torpidity of the liver and other affections of the abdominal viscera are relieved more surely and completely than any other class of affections by percussion, kneading, etc.

Such treatment comes under the head of counter irritation. A new circulation is established in the parts near the point of sufferinn and congestion. Besides this, especially in abdominal troubles, the manipulations appeal to the contractility of the weak relaxed vessels of the affected part.

The Rev. John A. Wilson, until recently a resident of Allegheny city, was united in marriage, Thursday last, to Miss Jennie E Shaw. Mr. Wilson was installed pastor of the U. P. Church at Beaver, a few weeks ago, and enters upon his ministerial labor under very auspicious circumstances. He and his new wife have the best wishes of a large circle of relatives and friends.—Pittsburgh Gazette.

Chinese Delicacies,—We are indebted to Mr. Henry Shuster, of Beaver Falls, for a sample of Chinese delicacies. The specimen sent us consists of very small dried fish, dried crabs, &c., &c. The flavor of the dish, it cannot be claimed, is over-charged with any particular sweetness. The Chinese use it as a desert, and have it imported to Beaver Falls from their native country.

Personal.—J. H. Cunningham, esq of St. Petersburgh, Clarion county, but formerly of this place, paid his old home a visit last week. The "Judge" looks well, and we are not a little gratified to hear that he is doing remarkably well in the way of legal practice among the Oil producers.

An accident attended with fatal result occurred on Tuesday at Beaver Falls, whereby a boy named Albrose lost his life. A train on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad was being backed, and one part was about to be switched, when the boy, thinking they were to be coupled, ran in between the cars to do so, and, falling on the track, was fearfully hurt. His right arm was cut off, his leg ripped open, and his body badly bruised. He was picked up almost immediately and carried to a house near by, where he lingered until seven o'clock on Tuesday, when death put an end to his agony. He was not an employee of the road, and no blame is attached to the men in charge of the train.—Radical.

"Specks" and His "Cousin."—We understand that a "distinguished" gentleman of Beaver Falls passed "Specs" off as his cousin, while that villain was maturing his plans to stuff the Beaver Falls ballot-boxes at the election on the 8th inst. The honest people of Beaver Falls should make things too hot for "Spec's" relative to stay behind. They ought to oblige him to conduct himself away at as early a date as possible. The town will thrive much better without him. In fact its reputation would have been better now if he had never set his foot within its limits. He has a crony or two that could likewise be spared without detriment to the town.

The Lightning on the Crest of the Rocky Mountains.—Gray's Peak is the home of the thunder. The lightning knows it as the eagle knows its nest. Being the highest of all the peaks of the Sierra, it attracts the clouds, which almost daily gather round its head and burst upon it, so that it sometimes tries the nerves of the boldest to run the gauntlet of these storms. At such times the whole mountain seems charged with electricity. Several who have been caught there at such a time told me how it shot through them like needles; it buzzed about their heads like bees; they could hear it whistling like a gale through the rigging of a ship. The guides, being more accustomed to such things, are less terrified, but tourists are sometimes paralyzed with terror, if not with the shock, and fall to the ground unable to move. Even the guides sometimes think it is a matter of prudence to throw themselves flat upon their faces, not to present a point for the lightning to strike. The poor brutes, taught by dumb instinct, turn their heads from the storm and let it beat. If a party were caught on the summit in a long snow storm, it is probable that they would perish. In the blinding drifts it would be impossible to find the path, and no mortal strength could hold out for many hours. Such accidents do not occur, because the guides are on the watch. When they see a storm coming up, they bid all run for their lives. They fly with speed, and come down often trembling and afraid, as if, like Moses, they had been up in the mount, into the cloud, and had seen the power of God.

A Plea for Night Air.—Household Monthly says: "What air can we breath at night except night air? The choice lies between pure night air from without and foul air from within. Most people prefer the latter, it is true, but it is night air all the same, though they may not be aware of the fact.

"Did you ever test these two kinds of night air by going early in the morning into the room of a person brought up to sleep with closed windows, and immediately afterwards into one where the sash has been lowered six inches from the top, and raised six from the bottom? Well, what did you find? In one, however pretty and well arranged, however healthy, neat, and well-bred its occupant, a smell of bed clothes, of damp towels, of dust of carpet—all slight, but all indicative of that used up condition of the atmosphere which is so fatal to a sleeper. In the other, no better situated or furnished, an elastic feel, a perfume of freshness which made breathing pleasant. Was it not so?

"Or did you ever compare your own sensations after sleeping in fresh air with those produced after sleeping in foul? How many of the failures, the mischances of life, the morning dullness which hindered this or that, the refusal of the brain to work at a critical moment, the apathy, the blindness of perception, date back to that unaired bed room, which sent us forth unrefreshed to our work, and ushered in a depressing and discouraged day.

"Yes, but, paradox as it seems, there is warmth in the very cold which an open window would admit. That is, the oxygen of the purer air, quickening the circulation and bringing the temperature of head, hands and feet into proper balance, will of itself induce a glow which holds the fire to rewarm the room after its airing."

Major Andre a Prisoner at Carlisle.

Many have expressed doubts as to the authenticity of the statement that Maj. Andre was a prisoner at Carlisle. A correspondent of the Presbyterian from Harrisburg seems to settle the matter. He says:

"Your paper of the first of August contains a letter from Carlisle, Pa., in which the writer mentions the fact of Maj. Andre having been a prisoner in that town during the Revolutionary war. It has been my privilege to be acquainted with several persons, within the last fifty years, who, in their youth, knew Major Andre when he was a prisoner in Carlisle.

"Major Andre and other British officers were captured at Ticonderoga, in Burgoyne's defeat, I think, and were brought to Carlisle by General St. Clair, who died about fifty years ago on his farm near Greensburg, Pennsylvania. Carlisle, being west of the Susquehanna, was considered the safest place in the country for prisoners. Between the years 1830 and 1840 the writer had repeated conversations with a person who was born in Carlisle in 1760, and lived about twenty years in a house but lately taken down, adjoining the present jail yard. This person, who was a near relative of Colonel George Gibson, said that Major Andre and the other prisoners were put under the command of Colonel George Gibson, and, being on their parole, were allowed to visit the town; that Major Andre was an accomplished gentleman; he was a fine musician, a poet, and a painter, and made himself very agreeable to the young people of the town; that Colonel Gibson, after the prisoners had been there a length of time, took them down to York, and after some time, were taken from there to Lancaster, where they were exchanged. Colonel Gibson was afterwards killed at St. Clair's defeat, in Ohio, in 1797. When Major Andre was executed as a spy, it became, for months afterwards, the main topic of conversation throughout the whole Cumberland Valley."

OAKLAND GROVE, BEAVER CO., PA.,
NEW BRIGHTON, Oct. 12, 1872.

COL. J. WEYAND, Editor "Beaver Argus," and to the honest citizens of Beaver county, GREETING:

Since my last letter published in the ARGUS (with the exception of correcting a mistatement on the part of your printer) an election has transpired, and, by the fraudulent purchase of votes, a fraud has been forced upon the people of the 26th Senatorial district in the election of J. S. Rutan to the State Senate.

I boldly warned your readers that Rutan was a fraud. I repeat that he is a fraud, and has been elected through fraudulent means. He attempted a fraud on the citizens of Beaver Falls, in this county, by importing to that place regularly practiced "counters-in" from Philadephia to stuff their ballot-boxes. I here and now charge this attempted outrage upon M. S. Quay, (editor of Beaver Radical) J. S. Rutan and R. W. Mackey—the latter now State Treasurer, and known as a libertine, a gambler, a treasury-swindler, and a robber of the people of Pennsylvania. He is a candidate for re-election. By their votes, at the late election, for J. S. Rutan, the people of this district virtually say this swindler is their choice. "True he steals our money, but he stands by us in a political fight; we like him, we are aware he was tried for embezzling the funds of the first bank he was ever employed in, and was only saved by the herculean efforts of brave old Tom Marshall, from a felon's cell; but Cameron, Quay and Rutan are for him, and we wish him licensed to rob the treasury for another year." This is the interpretation of your late ballot.

Shame on you puritanic hypocrites who went from store to store, in New Brighton, crying, "Vote for Rutan, or you shall have none of my custom." Do so, ye tailors, or you'll make no more coats for my straight carcass!" Men who did thus, opposed the scalawag Rutan when he ran for district Attorney, voted against him when a candidate for Senate; condemned him as a fraud and declared no money would induce them to support him for any office whatever. Yet, so soon as the golden wand of old Simon is stretched over them by the little corporal—Quay—(presto!) they fall into ranks and hurrah for the success of the treasury thieves most lustily.

Simon Cameron has owned Quay ever since the little treasury villian, Bill Kemble, paid the price of his purchase, in the Brady House, Harrisburg, on the Sunday preceding the nomination of a candidate for Speaker of the house of Representatives, and just preceding the nomination of United States Senator in 1867. Cameron has commanded Quay's services as a legislative borer or lobbyist and thimble-rigger, ever since that time. It is from this source that Quay makes his money. The Radical does not pay expenses; it is kept up by a system of black-mailing, and by a portion of the Treasury-ring swindles. J. S. Rutan is owned and controled exclusively by Quay; he dare not vote contrary to Quay's wishes. Such is the character of the man you have elected to make laws for you. He has sold you as I predicted he would. His way into the Senate has been purchased by the treasury-ring money. We have the dots, and are prepared to prove that he purchased votes in all three of the counties of the district. In the joint convention of the Legislature, he will be bound to vote for whoever Quay may designate for U. S. Senator, and Quay is ruled by Cameron who will allow the election of no man he cannot control for his own base purposes. Rutan will sell your rights if it is for the interest of himself or those who control him that he should do so. Quay, the gambler, edits your family newspaper and tells you how to vote. Rutan has, for the last two months, been editing that chaste sheet called the Beaver Conservative, in one number of which he charged me with having been a gambler. I gave it no attention at the time, but in justice to my friends I now state that Rutan knew he was lying when he wrote it. No living person ever saw me playing a game of any kind for money, not to the amount of one cent—not even marbles. I was taught better in my childhood.

I have told you a good deal about Rutan and Quay, but not one word that I cannot prove to be true. I could tell much more and much worse of them, and substantiate its truth; but what good would it do? Quay would take you by the nose and lead you to the polls, and vote you according to his pleasure, as he boasts he can do when he pleases—not you, Mr. Editor, but the mass of the voters of the county.

J. S. Rutan wrote to the Pittsburgh Commercial, last week, stating that I had offered two of my neighbors money to work and vote against the Republican ticket, but he did not wish to give their names. As Rutan has been proven to be and is a notorious falsifier, it is only necessary to pronounce the above false.—I will pay the sum of fifty dollars to any responsible man who will go before a reliable magistrate or notary public—in my presence and that of others—and under oath duly administered, say I offered to pay him money to work and vote against the Republican ticket. The editor of the Commercial would not have published such a falsehood against me before he sold himself to the Cameron treasury ring. Rutan is a fraud. No decent man ever told him I had offered money for the purposes aforesaid. He is a liar, and if he will confront me in a Court of competent jurisdiction I will prove him such.

One of Rutan's hirelings in New Brighton, blows his little horn, through his little paper, at those who opposed Jas. S. Rutan's election, and howls about Republican principles. Polecat Hays' is a beautiful champion of Republican principles. At the last Presidential election he was blowing and striking for Andrew Johnson, and held office under him. It will soon be time for Rutan to write a letter from Harrisburg to Hays' paper lauding himself, as was his practice last winter; and he should not neglect to mention therein that, with a bottle of whisky, called on Allen, Brown and Smith, at the Metropolitan Hotel in Beaver Falls, while they waited there for an opportunity to stuff the ballot-boxes of that borough. I am on your track, Rutan, and will show you up.

For the information of "whom it may concern," I will state that the man addressed as "Dear John," in the letter signed "Jim," as published in our warning to the people, is known in Philadelphia political circles as Johnny McGinnis—formerly a member of the Legislature—now a private detective of M. S. Quay and R. W. Mackey for service in their treasury-ring swindles and political frauds. I assert this on my own responsibility, being personally acquainted with the facts. The readers of the ARGUS will doubtless remember that I have named "Johnny McGinnis" on former occasions, as one of M. S. Quay's pimps. He it was that brought the little pick-pocket Kid from Philadelphia to Harrisburg to steal the lock from the door of the room of my friends in the State Treasurer contest. This McGinnis did at Quay's request.

The chain of evidence in regard to the Beaver Falls attempted fraud is filling up, link by link, and when it is complete look out for breakers. W. W. IRWIN.

☞ A new thing under the sun; "A thing of life and a joy forever," to all interested in having a first class Parlor Stove. To all such we would say by all means call at the Sample and Sales Room of the Beaver Falls Co-operative Foundry Association, (Reeves' Brick Block) and examine a No. 14 Jubilee Magazine Self-Feeder Soft Coal Base Burner Stove. Uses less fuel, makes more heat. No smoke, no gas.

☞ We would call the attention of our friends to the advertisement of Mr. M. Schiff, of New Brighton. We must say we were quite surprised to hear that Mr. Schiff intends to sell out his dry goods, as we knew he was one of the most successful merchants at that place, but he informed us that he made up his mind to devote all his means and energies in the future to the manufacturing business, as he has a great demand for his make of hosiery, from Eastern and Western merchants.

Mr. Schiff is engaging hands all the time, and wants fifty more as soon as he can get them, and those who like to make a good living in an easy business had better apply at once.

The Apple Crop.—Not for a great many years has the apple crop in this locality equaled the present one. Nearly every tree having any bearing capacity is loaded with luscious fruit, and we believe nobody now thinks of asking any one else to buy apples at any price.—"Come and get what you want and welcome" is a standing invitation everywhere and to everybody.

Run Over by the Cars.—On Saturday evening of week before last, a man by the name of Guthrie, who is engaged in repairing the telegraph wires along the road, while walking on the track of the Pittsburgh Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad, at Rochester station, was struck by the locomotive, run over, and one of his legs horribly mutilated. Mr. Guthrie is a resident of Canton, Ohio.

Fast Time.—At the Indianapolis Indiana, race last week, "Copper Bottom," the pacing horse owned by Mr. Ewing of this place, took the first money. One of the heats was won in the extraordinary time of 2.18. His trainer offers to put up $10,000 that he can "get away" with any horse in the United States.

On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday the 24th, 25th, and 26th. inst., there will be Trotting, Pacing, and Running Races on the Beaver Track. Four of the fastest Pacers in the United States have entered. to wit: Copper Bottom, Gipsey Roan, Harry and Voorhees. The fastest flyers in the country have promised to be present.

For the Beaver Argus.

A Card.—The undersigned has learned that his name was printed at the head of a ticket, prepared for the recent election, as a candidate for Congress in the 24th District; which ticket, I am told, was printed and circulated to a limited extent in Beaver county. This thing may have been done by some well-meaning, but injudicious friend; or it may have been done by some impertinent person of opposite feeling—I know not; but I wish to say:

1st. It was wholly without my knowledge and consent; and I deem it an unwarrantable use of my name; for

2d. Whilst I hold that ministers of the gospel are citizens, and have the right of opinion and suffrage, I esteem it wholly incompatible with the office of an ambassador of Christ, sent to persuade men to be reconciled to God, to interfere with politics of a party kind—especially in view of the filthy and audacious character which politics, in these degenerate days, have assumed.

3d. So far as I know my name was only so used in Beaver Co. I knew not of it until the day before the election, too late to make this disavowal before that day.

4th. As I most heartily despise clergymen, who bind themselves to be party hacks and pimps, I am unwilling to leave the impression on the public mind that I wanted to be a candidate for any civil office, while occupying the office of pastor. Yours truly,

D. A. JUNKIN.

GRAND GIFT CONCERT.

Postponed to December 7, 1872.

THE SECOND GRAND GIFT CONCERT in aid of the Public LIBRARY of KENTUCKY, announced for September 28, has been postponed to December 7, 1872, because the accumulation of orders the few days before the drawing made it physically impossible to fill them without a few day's delay, and as a short postponement was inevitable, it was determined to defer it to a time that would make a full drawing sure by the sale of all the tickets.

The money necessary to pay in full all the offered gifts is now on deposit in the Farmers & Drovers's Bank, as will be seen by the following certificate of the Cashier:

FARMERS & DROVERS' BANK,
LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 26, 1872.

This is to certify that there is now on deposit in this bank over half a million of dollars to the credit of the Gift Concert fund. $500,000 of which is held by this bank as Treasurer of the Public Library of Kentucky to pay off all gifts to be awarded at the drawing.

1,000 Prizes, amounting to

will be awarded, the highest prizes being $100,000, $50,000, 25 000 and down in regular gradation to $100, which is the lowest.

The drawing will positively and unequivocally take place December 7. Agents are peremptorily required to close sales and make returns November 25, in order to give ample time for the final arrangements. Orders for tickets or applications for circulars should be addressed to.

BUTLER'S CAREER IN EGYPT.

A Representative Who Disgraced His Country.

A letter from Alexandria, Egypt, of date August 25, is published in the New York World, giving what purports to be a history of the career of George H. Butler, recently American Consul General to Egypt, but who left for parts unknown when he discovered that President Grant had sent General Starring to investigate the charges made against him by Dr. Strang, the missionary, and other gentlemen. The charges against Butler are of the most serious character, his conduct having been such as to bring disgrace on the country he misrepresented. It is charged that Butler used his influence with the Khedive to promote or degrade American officers serving in the Egyptian army, according to his likes or dislikes. The cause of the antagonism between Butler and these officers was of a social character, arising from the refusal of the wives of the latter to recognize Mr. Butler; not on her own account, but on account of the conduct of her husband. This was the exciting cause of his hostility to Vanderbilt Allen, an American officer or graduate of West Point, and at the time serving in the Khedive's army. In consequence of the refusal of Mrs. Allen to visit Mrs. Butler, Mr. Butler instituted a relentless war against Allen, which his official influence with the Khedive made it easy for him to prosecute.

His private character was so bad, his gambling and profligacy a matter of so much notoriety, that admission to the society of foreign representatives, known as the Consular Club, was refused him. Americans visiting Egypt were compelled to seek protection under foreign flags, so utterly unable were they to secure from him proper and necessary attention. Consular agents were removed without law, and, through his servile tool, a Levantine desperado named Strologo, notified that by the payment of a specified sum of money they could be reinstated, which was done in several instances, and the money naturally paid for restoration to places illegally taken from them. Others, refusing to pay, were not successful in being reinstated. Butler also secured the appointment as consular agents of persons who were engaged in the Abyssinian slave trade, and who, after their appointments, continued the unholy traffic under the flag of the United States. He received from one of these men a present of four slaves, which he caused to be sold in the market at Alexandria, pocketing the proceeds. Butler's peculiar aversion, says the correspondent, were the missionaries, and he announced it at a public dinner as his purpose to lay a plan to have them all kidnapped, their heads shaved, and themselves sent out of the country as criminals. To the query what he would do when it became known, he replied that he would "fix that all right" The old man (meaning his uncle, Gen. Butler) would get on his knees in holy horror, and perhaps drop him; but, he added, "wouldn't I be the best advertised man in the country for a time?"

So little regard had he for the honor of the goverment he represented, that he used his office under it to exact tribute from the Khedive, with which to pay his profligate debts. The Khedive, wishing to secure his influence, was willing at all times to help him, of which fact Butler was equally ready to take advantage. At one time, when he was in trouble, the Khedive asked him the cause of his anxiety, remarking that perhaps he could assist him. "No," replied Butler, "it is my private debts that are troubling me. The Khedive answered that he did not wish the representatives here to be troubled with money matters, and generously offered him a large sum of money as a present, which Butler without difficulty accepted.

On another occasion, when dining with a party of gentlemen, the subject of the Jewish religion was under discussion, when Butler, to the horor and disgust of all who were present, loudly asserted his belief that Christ was the illegitimate child of a courtesan, kept by Joseph for the benefit of the Roman soldiers.

The shooting affair which ended the career of this notorious roprobate is well understood here, as was the attempted caning of Dr. Strang by his factotum, the Levantine, Strologo, to have been instituted by Butler himself.

The mails were tampered with by him, and so bold was he in his lawlessness that at one time he deliberately handed an English gentleman an opened letter at a public dinner-table and excused himself for opening it by saying it was a mistake.

When he learned that Gen. Starring had been dispatched to investigate his conduct, Butler used every endeavor to get him under his influence, but the General was not to be beguiled from his duty. Starring evaded a meeting with Butler by avoiding a landing at Alexandria, entering Egypt through another port. It is said that many facts regarding this man's career, were never brought out, even to Gen. Starring, through the Oriental fear of those posessing them of being involved in the affair. A Frankish official is a great personage here, and many natives feared that if it became known that they had testified against him his malignity would be so great that he would persecute them to such an extent that they could not live in the country. There has been a continual season of rejoicing since he took his flight, and is hoped (above all by all Americans here) that he may yet be brought to trial for his complicity in the cowardly attempt to murder Major Campbell.

The Verb "To Break."

"I begin to understand your language better," said my French friend, Mr. Arcourt, to me; "but your verbs trouble me still, you mix them so with prepositions."

"I am sorry you find them troublesome," was all I could say.

"I saw our friend Mrs. Janes just now," continued he. "She says she intends to break down housekeeping. Am I right there?"

"Break up housekeeping, she must have said."

"O, yes, I remember. Break up housekeeping."

"Why does she do that?" I asked.

"Because her health is so broken into."

"Broken down, you should say."

"Broken down, O, yes. And indeed since the small pox has broken up in your city—"

"Broken out."

"She thinks she will leave for a few weeks."

"Indeed. And will she close her house?"

"No; she is afraid it will be broken—broken—How do I say that?"

"Broken into."

"Certainly, it is what I meant to say."

"Is her son to be married soon?"

"No; that engagement is broken—broken—"

Broken off."

"Ah! I had not heard that.—She is very sorry about it. Her son only broke the news down to her last week. Am I right? I am so anxious to speak the English well."

"He merely the broke news; no preposition this time."

"It is hard to understand. That young man, her son, is a fine fellow; a breaker, I think."

"A broker, and a very fine fellow. Good-day."

"So much," thought I, "for the verb to 'break.'"

☞ Not a bad pun, this, from the Cincinnati Commercial: It must not be inferred that the country is "going to the dogs," because the selection of next President is reduced to a choice between a type-setter and a West Pointer."

General Election Proclamation.

WHEREAS, In and by an Act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, entitled "An Act relating to elections of the Commonwealth," passed the 2d day of July, A. D. 1839, it is made the duty of the Sheriff of every county within this Commonwealth to give public notice of the General Elections, and in such notice to enumerate—

Also, that in the fourth section of the act of Assembly entitled "An Act relating to executions and for other purposes," approved April 16, 1840, it is enacted that the aforesaid 13th section "shall not be so construed as to prevent any militia officer or borough officer from serving as judge, inspector or clerk at any general or special election in this Commonwealth.

"If any person shall prevent or attempt to prevent any officers of an election under this act from holding such election, or use or threaten any violence to any such officer, or shall interrupt or improperly interfere with him in the execution of his duty, or shall block up the window or avenue to any window where the same may be holding or shall riotously disturb the peace at such election, or shall use or practice any intimidating threats, force or violence, with design to influence unduly or overawe any elector or to prevent him from voting or to restrain the freedom of choice, such person on conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars and imprisonment for any time not less than one month nor more than twelve months, and if it shall be shown the court where the trial of such offence shall be had, that the person so offending was not a resident of the city, ward, district, or the township where the offence is committed and not entitled to vote therein, then on conviction he shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars and be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years."

If any person or persons shall make any bet or wager upon the result of any election within this Commonwealth or shall offer to make any such bet or wager, either by verbal proclamation thereto or by any printed or written advertisment, challenge or invite any person or persons to make such bet or wager, upon conviction thereof, he or they shall forfeit and pay three times the amount so offered in the bet.

If any person shall vote at more than one election district, or otherwise fraudulently vote more than once on the same day, or shall fraudulently fold and deliver to the inspector two tickets together, with the intent illegally to vote, or advise and procure another so to do; he or they shall on conviction be fined in any sum not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars, and be imprisoned not less than three nor more than twelve months.

If any person not qualified to vote in this Commonwealth, agreeably to law, (except the sons of qualified citizens,) shall appear at any place of election, for the purpose of issuing tickets or of influencing citizens qualified to vote, he shall on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars for every such offence and be imprisoned for any term not exceeding twelve months.

In case the person who shall have received the second highest number of votes for inspector shall not attend on the day of election, then the person who shall have received the second highest number of votes for judge at the next preceding spring election shall act as inspector in his place, and in case the person who shall have received the highest number of votes for inspector shall not attend, the person elected judge shall appoint an inspector in his place; and in case the person elected judge shall not attend, then the inspector who received the highest number of votes shall appoint a judge in his place; or if any vacancy shall continue in the board for the space of one hour after the time fixed by law for the opening of the election, the qualified voters of the township, ward or district for which such officer shall have been elected, present at the place of election shall select one out of their number to fill such vacancy.

REGISTRY LAW.

I also give official notice to the electors of Beaver county that, by an act entitled "An Act further supplemental to the act relative to the elections of this Commonwealth," approved April 17th, A D. 1869, it is provided as follows:

SECTION 4. On the day of election any person whose name is not on the said list, [meaning the registration list—Sheriff], and claiming the right to vote at said election, shall produce at least one qualified voter of the district as a witness to the residence of the claimant in the district in which he claims to be a voter, for the period of at least ten days next preceding said election, which witness shall take and subscribe a written, or partly written and partly printed affidavit to the facts stated by him, which affidavit shall define clearly where the residence is of the person so claiming to be a voter; and the person so claiming the right to vote shall also take and subscribe a written, or partly written and partly printed, affidavit, stating, to the best of his knowledge and belief, where and when he was born; that he is a citizen of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and of the United States; that he has resided in the commonwealth one year, or if formerly a citizen therein and has moved therefrom, that he has resided therein six months next preceding said election; that he has not moved into the district for the purpose of voting therein; that he has paid a state or county tax within two years, which was assessed at least ten days before said election; and if a naturalized citizen, shall also state when, where, and by what court he was naturalized, and also produce his certificate of naturalization for examination; the said affidavit shall also state where and when the tax claimed to be paid by the affiant was assessed, and when, where and to whom paid; and tax receipt therefor shall be produced for examination, unless the affiant shall state in his affidavit that it has been lost or destroyed, or that he never received any, but if the person so claiming the right to vote shall take and subscribe an affidavit, that he is a native born citizen of the United States (or if born elsewhere, shall state that fact in his affidavit, and shall produce evidence that he has been naturalized, or that he is entitled to citizenship by reason of his father's naturalization), and shall further state in his affidavit that he is, at the time of taking the affidavit, between the ages of twenty one and twenty-two years, that he has resided in the state one year and in the election district ten days next preceding such election, he shall be entitled to vote, although he shall not have paid taxes, the said affidavit of all persons making such claims, and the affidavits of the witnesses to their residence, shall be preserved by the election board, and at the close of the election they shall be enclosed with the list of voters tally list and other papers required by law to be filed by the return judge with the prothonotary, and shall remain on file therewith in the prothonotary's office, subject to the examination, as other election papers are; if the election officers shall find that the applicant or applicants possess all the legal qualifications of voters, he or they shall be permitted to vote and the name or names shall be added to the list of taxables by the election officers, the word "tax" being added where the claimant claims to vote on tax, and the word "age" where he claims to vote on age; the same words being added by the clerks in each case respectively on the list of persons voting at such election.

SECTION 5. It shall be lawful for any qualified citizen of the district, notwithstanding the name of the proposed voter is contained on the list of resident taxables, to challenge the vote of such person; whereupon the same proof of the right of suffrage as is now required by law shall be publicly made and acted on by the election board, and the vote admitted or rejected, according to the evidence; every person claiming to be a naturalized citizen shall be required to produce his naturalization certificate at the election before voting, except where he has been for ten years consecutively, a voter in the district in which he offers his vote; and on the vote of such person being received, it shall be the duty of the election officers to write or stamp on such certificate the word "voted," with the month and year; and if any election officer or officers shall receive a second vote on the same day, by virtue of the same certificate, excepting where sons are entitled to vote by virtue of the naturalization of their fathers, they and that person who shall offer such second vote, upon so offending shall be guilty of a high misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court, but the fine shall not exceed one hundred dollars in each case, nor the imprisonment one year, the like punishment shall be inflicted, on conviction, of the officers of the election who shall neglect or refuse to make, or caused to be made, the indorsement required as aforesaid on said naturalization certificate.

SECTION 8. If any election officer shall refuse or neglect to require such proof of the right of suffrage as is prescribed by this law, or the laws to which this is a supplement, from any person offering to vote whose name is not on the list of assessed voters, or whose right to vote is challenged by any qualified voter present; and shall admit such person to vote without requiring such proof, every person so offending shall, upon conviction, be guilty of a high misdemeanor, and shall be sentenced, for every such offence, to pay a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment not more than one year, or either or both at the discretion of the court.

* * * * * * * *

SECTION 9. The respective assessors, inspectors and judges of the elections shall each have the power to administer oaths to any person claiming the right to be assessed or the right of suffrage, or in regard to any other matter or thing required to be done or inquired into by any of said officers under this act; and any wilful false swearing by any person in relation to any matter or thing concerning which they shall be lawfully interrogated by any of said officers, shall be punished as perjury

* * * * * * * *

SECTION 11. On the petition of five or more citizens of the county, stating under oath that they verily believe that frauds will be practiced at the election to be held in any district, it shall be the duty of the court of common pleas of said county—if in session, or if not a judge thereof in vacation—to appoint two judicious, sober and intelligent citizens of the county to act as overseers at said election; said overseers shall be selected from different political parties where the inspectors belong to different parties, and where both of said inspectors belong to the same political party both overseers shall be taken from the opposite political party; said overseers shall have the right to be present with the officers of the election during the whole time the same is held, the votes counted, and the returns made out and signed by the election officers; to keep a list of voters if they see proper; to challenge any person offering to vote, and to interrogate him and his witnesses under oath in regard to his right of suffrage at said election, and to examine his papers produced; and the officers of said election are required to afford to said overseers so selected and appointed every convenience and facility for the discharge of their duties; and if said election officers shall refuse to permit said overseers to be present and perform their duties as aforesaid, or if they shall be driven away from the polls by violence or intimidation, all the votes polled at such election district may be rejected by any tribunal trying a contest under said election; Provided, That no person signing the petition shall be appointed an overseer. * *

SECTION 14. Any assessor, election officer, or person appointed as an overseer, who shall neglect or refuse to perform any duty enjoined by this act, without reasonable or legal cause, shall be subject to a penalty of one hundred dollars; and if any assessor shall assess any person as a voter who is not qualified, or shall refuse to assess any one who is qualified, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and on conviction be punished by fine or imprisonment, and also be subject to an action for damages by the party aggrieved; and if any person shall fraudulently alter, add to, deface or destroy any list of voters made out as directed by this act, or tear down or remove the same from the place where it has been fixed, with fraudulent or mischievous intent, or for any improper purpose, the person so offending shall be guilty of a high misdemeanor, and on conviction, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, at the discretion of the court. * * * * * *

SECTION 16. That citizens of this State temporarily in the service of the State or of the United States governments, on clerical or other duty, and who do not vote where thus employed, shall not be thereby deprived of the right to vote in their several election districts if otherwise duly qualified. * * * * * *

SECTION 19. At all elections hereinafter held under the laws of this Commonwealth, the polls shall be opened between the hours of six and seven o'clock, a. m., and close at 7 o'clock, p. m.

Colored Voters' Law.

The following instructions from his Excellency, Gov. Geary, explain the duties of Assessors, Registers, and election officers in regard to all freemen of this commonwealth:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, PA., Aug. 27, 1872.

To the Sheriff of the County of Beaver:

WHEREAS, The Fifteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States is as follows:

SECTION 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States, or by any State, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

SECTION 2 The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation

And whereas, the Congress of the United States, on the 31st day of March, 1870, passed an act, entitled "An Act to enforce the right of citizens of the United States to vote in the several States of this Union, and for other purposes," the first and second sections of which are as follows:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate & House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all citizens of the United States who are or shall be otherwise qualified to vote at any election by the people in any State, Territory, district, county, city, parish, township, school-district, municipality or other territorial sub-division, shall be entitled and allowed to vote at all such elections, without distinction of race, color, or previous condition of servitude; any Constitution, law, custom, usage, or regulation of any State or Territory, or by or under its authority, to the contrary notwithstanding.

SECTION 2. And be it further enacted, That if by or under the authority of the Constitution or law of any State, or the laws of any Territory any act is or shall be required to be done as a pre-requisite or qualification for voting, and by such Constitution or laws persons or officers are or shall be charged with the performance of duties in furnishing citizens an opportunity to perform such prerequisite, or to become qualified to vote, it shall be the duty of every such person and officer to give to all citizens of the United States the same and equal opportunity to perform such prerequisite, and to become qualified to vote without distinction of race, color, or previous condition of servitude; and if any such person or officer shall refuse, or knowingly omit to give full effect to this section he shall, for every offence, forfeit and pay the sum of five hundred dollars to the person aggrieved thereby, to be recovered by an action on the case, with full costs and such allowance for counsel fees as the court shall deem just, and shall also, for every such offence, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, on conviction thereof, be fined not less than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not less than one month and not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court

And Whereas, It is declared by the second section of the VI article of the Constitution of the United States, that "This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof, shall be the supreme law of the land. * * * * * anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

And whereas, The Legislature of this Commonwealth, on the 6th day of April, A. D., 1870, passed an act, entitled "A further supplement to the act relating to the elections in this Commonwealth," the tenth section of which provides as follows:

SECTION 10. That so much of every act of Assembly as provides that only white freemen shall be entitled to vote or be registered as voters, or as claiming to vote at any general or special election of this Commonwealth, be and the same is hereby repealed; and that hereafter all freemen, without distinction of color, shall be enrolled and registered according to the provisions of the first section of the act approved the 17th of April, 1869 entitled "An Act further supplemental to the act relating to the elections of this Commonwealth," and when otherwise qualified under existing laws, be entitled to vote at all general and special elections in this Commonwealth.

And whereas, It is my constitutional and official duty to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed," and it has come to my knowledge that sundry assessors and registers of voters have refused, and are refusing, to assess and register divers colored male citizens of lawful age, and otherwise qualified as electors.

Now therefore, In consideration of the premises the county commissioners of said county are hereby notified and directed to instruct the several assessors and registers of voters therein to obey and conform to the requirements of said constitutional amendment and laws; and the sheriff of said county is hereby authorized and required to publish in his election proclamation for the next ensuing elections, the herein recited constitutional amendment, act of Congress, and act of the Legislature, to the end that the same may be known, executed and obeyed by all assessors, registers of voters, election officers and others; and that the rights and privileges guaranteed thereby may be secured to all the citizens of this Commonwealth entitled to the same.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the [SEAL.] State, at Harrisburg, the day and year first above written.

ATTEST: JNO. W. GEARY.
F. JORDAN, Sec'y of Commonwealth.

Pursuant to the provisions contained in the 76th section of the act aforesaid, the judges of the aforesaid districts shall respectively take charge of the certificates of return of the election of their respective districts, and produce them at a meeting of one judge from each district at the borough of Beaver on the third day after the day of the election, being ON FRIDAY, THE 8TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, A. D, 1872, then and there to do and perform the duties required by law of said judges.

Where a judge, by sickness or unavoidable accident, is unable to attend such meeting of judges, then the certificate of return shall be taken charge of by one of the inspectors or clerks of the election of the district, who shall do and perform the duties required of said judge unable to attend.

Given under my hand, at my office, in Beaver, this 4th day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and in the ninety seventh year of the Independence of the United States. JOHN GRÆBING, Sheriff.

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and a Life-giving Principle, a Perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effects.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

Grateful thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. Says a distinguished physiologist: There is scarcely an individual upon the face of the earth whose body is exempt from the presence of worms. It is not upon the healthy elements of the body that worms exist, but upon the diseased humors and slimy deposits that breed these living monsters of disease. No system of Medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

Mechanical Diseases. Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, will be subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS once or twice a week, as a Preventive.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goiter, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters act on all these cases in a similar manner. By purifying the Blood they remove the cause, and by resolving away the effects of the inflammation (the tubercular deposits) the affected parts receive health, and a permanent cure is effected.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic and Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

The Aperient and mild Laxative properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are the best safe-guard in all cases of eruptions and malignant fevers, their balsamic, healing, and soothing properties protect the humors of the fauces. Their Sedative properties allay pain in the nervous system, stomach, and bowels, either from inflammation, wind, colic, cramps, etc. Their Counter-Irritant influence extends throughout the system. Their Anti-Bilious properties stimulate the liver, in the secretion of bile, and its discharges through the biliary ducts, and are superior to all remedial agents, for the cure of Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, etc.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forearmed.

Directions.—Take of the Bitters on going to bed at night from a half to one and one-half wineglassfull. Eat good nourishing food, such as beef-steak, mutton chop, venison, roast beef, and vegetables, and take out-door exercise. They are composed of purely vegetable ingredients, and contain no spirit.

after reading this advertisement need any one SUFFER WITH PAIN.
RADWAY'S READY RELIEF IS A CURE FOR EVERY PAIN.
It was the first and is
The Only Pain Remedy
that instantly stops the most excruciating pains, allays Inflammations, and cures Congestions, whether of the Lungs, Stomach, Bowels, or other glands or organs, by one application.
IN FROM ONE TO TWENTY MINUTES.
No matter how violent or excruciating the pain the RHEUMATIC, Bed-ridden, Infirm, Crippled, Nervous, Neuralgic, or prostrated with disease may suffer,

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

WILL AFFORD INSTANT EASE.
INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS.
INFLAMMATION OF THE BLADDER.
INFLAMMATION OF THE BOWELS.
CONGESTION OF THE LUNGS.
SORE THROAT, DIFFICULT BREATHING.
PALPITATION OF THE HEART.
HYSTERICS, CROUP, DIPHTHERIA.
CATARRH, INFLUENZA.
HEADACHE, TOOTHACHE.
NEURALGIA, RHEUMATISM.
COLD CHILLS, AGUE CHILLS.

The application of the Ready Relief to the part or parts where the pain or difficulty exists will afford ease and comfort.

Twenty drops in half a tumbler of water will in a few moments cure CRAMPS, SPASMS, SOUR STOMACH, HEARTBURN, SICK HEADACHE, DIARRHEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, WIND IN THE BOWELS, and all INTERNAL PAINS.

Travelers should always carry a bottle of Radway's Ready Relief with them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or pains from change of water. It is better than French Brandy or Bitters as a stimulant.

FEVER AND AGUE.

FEVER AND AGUE cured for fifty cents. There is not a remedial agent in this world that will cure Fever and Ague, and all other Malarious, Bilious, Scarlet, Typhoid, Yellow, and other Fevers (aided by RADWAY'S PILLS) so quick as RADWAY'S READY RELIEF. Fifty cents per bottle. Sold by Druggists.

HEALTH! BEAUTY!!

STRONG AND PURE RICH BLOOD—INCREASE OF FLESH AND WEIGHT—CLEAR SKIN AND BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION SECURED TO ALL.

DR. RADWAY'S
SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT

HAS MADE THE MOST ASTONISHING CURES; SO QUICK, SO RAPID ARE THE CHANGES THE BODY UNDERGOES, UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF THIS TRULY WONDERFUL MEDICINE, THAT

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

Every drop of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT communicates through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life, for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, Syphilis, Consumption, Glandular disease, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumous Discharges from the Ears, and the worst forms of Skin diseases, Eruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all weakening and painful discharges, Night Sweats, Loss of Sperm, and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative range of this wonder of Modern Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them.

Not only does the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT excel all known remedial agents in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional, and Skin diseases; but it is the only positive cure for

Kidney & Bladder Complaints,

Urinary, and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are brickdust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid, dark, bilious appearance, and white bone-dust deposits, and when there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the Small of the Back and along the Loins. Price, $1.00.

WORMS.—The only known and sure Remedy for Worms—Pin, Tape, etc.

Tumor of 12 Years' Growth Cured by Radway's Resolvent.

BEVERLY, MASS., July 18, 1869.

DR. RADWAY:—I have had Ovarian Tumor in the ovaries and bowels. All the Doctors said "there was no help for it." I tried every thing that was recommended; but nothing helped me. I saw your Resolvent, and thought I would try it; but had no faith in it, because I had suffered for twelve years. I took six bottles of the Resolvent, and one box of Radway's Pills, and two bottles of your Ready Relief; and there is not a sign of tumor to be seen or felt, and I feel better, smarter, and happier than I have for twelve years. The worst tumor was in the left side of the bowels, over the groin. I write this to you for the benefit of others. You can publish it if you choose. HANNAH P. KNAPP.

DR. RADWAY'S

perfectly tasteless, elegantly coated with sweet gum, purge, regulate, purify, cleanse, and strengthen. Radway's Pills, for the cure of all disorders of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Bladder, Nervous Diseases, Headache, Constipation, Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Bilious Fever, Inflammation of the Bowels, Piles, and all Derangements of the Internal Viscera. Warranted to effect a positive cure. Purely Vegetable, containing no mercury, minerals, or deleterious drugs.

☞ Observe the following symptoms resulting from Disorders of the Digestive Organs:

Constipation, Inward Piles, Fullness of the Blood in the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust of Food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Chest, Limbs, and sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh.

A few doses of RADWAY'S PILLS will free the system from all the above-named disorders. Price, 25 cents per box. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS.

The Best for All Purposes,

More easily managed, more durable, and runs lighter than any Machine in the market; easily cleaned and kept in order; large bobbins, holds twice as much thread as any other shuttle. Lock-stitch, alike on both sides; self-adjusting tension.

Justly Popular.

From the first the "DOMESTIC" has rapidly increased in popularity, until today, in the opinion of all experienced Sewing Machine men, it stands forth

UNRIVALLED!

It is gaining favor much faster than any other Machine heretofore presented to the public, which can be seen from its increased sales last year over the preceding, being

OVER FIVE HUNDRED PER CENT.

No Machine is increasing its sales and gaining public favor as rapidly as the
